PEACE TREATY

FOE MUST PAY FIVE BILLION INDEMNITY

In addition to the securities afforded in the treaty of peace, the President of the United States has pledged himself to propose to the Senate of the United States, and the Prime Minister of Great Britain has pledged himself to propose to the Parliament of Great Britain, in engagement, subject to the approval of the council of the League of Nations, to come immediately to the assistance of France in case of unprovoked attack by Germany.

Following is a summary of the Treaty of Peace prepared for use of the press:

Paris, May 7.—The treaty of peace handed to the German plenipotentiaries at Versailles today is the longest treaty ever drawn. It totals about eighty thousand words, divided into fifteen main sections, and represents the combined product of over a thousand experts working continually through a series of commission, for the three and a half months since January 18 the treaty printed in parallel pages of English and French, which are recognized as having equal validity.

It does not deal with questions affecting Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey except insofar as binding Germany to accept any agreement reached with those former allies.

Following the preamble and deposition of powers comes the covenant of the League of Nations as the first section of the treaty. The frontiers of Germany in Europe defined in the second section; European political classes given in the third; and extra—European political classes in the fourth.

Next are the military, naval and air terms as the fifth section, followed by a section on prisoners of war and military graves, and a seventh on responsibilities. Reparations, financial terms and economic terms are covered in sections eight to ten. Then comes the areonautic section, ports, waterways, and railway section, the labor covenant, the section on guarantees, and the final clauses.

Germany, by the terms of the treaty, restores Alsace-Lorraine to France; accepts the internationalization of the Saar basin temporarily and of Danzig permanently; agrees to territorial changes toward Belgium and Denmark and in East Prussia; cedes most of Upper Silesia to Poland, and renounces all territorial and political rights outside Europe as to her own or her allies' territories, and especially to Morocco, Egypt, Siam, Liberia and Shantung. She also recognizes the total independence of German-Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland.

Her army is reduced to 100,000 men, including officers; conscription within her territories is abolished; all forts fifty kilometers east of the Rhine razed; and all importation, exportation and nearly all production of war material stopped. Allied occupation of parts of Germany will continue till reparation is made, but will be reduced at the end of each of three five-year periods if Germany is fulfilling her obligations.

Any violation by Germany of the conditions as to the zone fifty kilometers east of the Rhine will be regarded as an act of war.

The German navy is reduced to six battleships, six light cruisers and twelve torpedo boats, without submarines, and a personnel of not over 15,000. All other vessels must be surrendered or destroyed.

Germany is forbidden to build forts controlling the Baltic, must demolish Heligoland, open the Kiel Canal to all nations and surrender her fourteen submarine cables. She may have no military or naval air forces except 100 unarmed seaplanes until October 1 to detect mines, and may manufacture aviation material for six months.

ROBBERS GET $3,700 IN LYNN

Holdup Gang of Four Take Payroll From Barnett Factory and Escape in Auto

Four armed men, one of them masked, entered the office of J. F. Barnett & Sons' leather factory on Boston street, Lynn, today, hel dup Treasurer Fred Barnett and George Tofias, and forced them to surrender a satchel containing $3,700, the weekly payroll. The men escaped in the direction of Peabody in the automobile in which they had come.

The hold-up, one of the most daring in recent criminal history in Lynn, was committed while dozens of employes strolled through the halls and while at least a half-dozen girl clerks cowered behind desks.

Three of the men stood guard in the corridor, while the fourth, masked, entered the pay office and seized the money.

The robbery was committed by men familiar with affairs about the plant, the police believe, as they had timed their arrival a few minutes after Mr. Barnett and Mr. Tofani had brought the payroll money from the bank.

They were in a Packard automobile with the Massachusetts registry number of 94694. This machine is listed in automobile directories as the property of Michael Kelley of Boston, and it is believed the holdup party prefaced the robbery at the leather factory by stealing the car.

The police have obtained a fairly good description of three of the men, who entered the factory building with their faces uncovered and their hats pushed back.

BOSTON RISKS ON FRUIT SHIP DAMAGED IN CRASH

Word was received today by Boston insurance underwriters in a private cable stating that the British steamship Iperia, bound from Bussorah and Bombay, India, for New York, with a cargo of dates valued at $1,100,000, has been in collision with a Norwegian vessel and has sustained heavy damage. The collision occurred in the vicinity of the Azores. According to the dispatch, water is flowing into the No. 3 and No. 4 holds. No. 3 already being full of water. The vessel's crew, however, is able to control the flow into No. 4. According to last reports, the vessel is rolling badly in a heavy sea. The cargo is consigned to Hills Brother Company, New York. It is insured by Boston underwriters.

FOUR DAYS LEFT! LOAN MUST WIN

$36,616,750 a Day Needed to "Finish the Job;" Appeal by Chairman Hallowell

TO "FINISH THE JOB."
New England's full share, $273,000,000
Time of campaign—18 days.
Subscribed in 14 days, $228,541,000
Subscribed in FOUR days, $146,458,000
We need each day—$36,614,750.
ALL TOGETHER, NOW, FOR A "GARRISON FINISH."

New England whirled into the patriotic stretch today in a desperate race to beat Father Time in the race for the Victory Loan.

"ONLY FOUR DAYS LEFT—ONLY FOUR DAYS LEFT."

That was the imperative measure to which the contest sped.

Between now and the closing of the campaign Saturday night the Boston-New England district must raise $146,000,000 more in order to make the full district quota of $375,000,000.

That means a daily average of $36,614,750 for the four remaining days.

WILSON CALLS CONGRESS FOR MAY 19

Washington, May 7.—President Wilson today called an extraordinary session of the Sixty-sixth Congress for May 19. Secretary Tumulty received cabled instructions from Paris early today to issue the formal call.

The date caused a distinct surprise among congressional circles. It was known that the call would be forthcoming within a few days, but May 26 was the earliest date that was speculated upon.

The calling of the session for May 19 means that the President will not be in Washington to address a joint session on that date. When he left for his second trip to Paris it was known to be his intention not to call the special session until he could be in Washington. What may have caused him to change his attitude in this respect was not revealed.

The White House today claimed to be without any information on the definite date of the President's return, but it was assumed that he would remain in Paris until the Germans have signed the peace treaty.

It is believed the President, in calling a special session for so early a date, yielded to pressure from Secretary Glass, who for some time has been anxious to have appropriation and supply measures that failed of passage in the last Congress got out of the way. It is known that he has been in communication with Paris for some time, and that he has urged speedy action necessary to putting the finances of the country in shape.

Four German Cannon Offered as Loan Trophies

Any city or town in New England can take a German cannon as its own memorial of work on the Victory Loan.

Four captured German cannon are offered by the New England Liberty Loan Committee to the four New England towns or cities having the largest percentage of individual subscriptions to the Victory Loan in their respective classes. The classes are: Over 50,000 population, between 20,000 and 50,000, and between 5,000 and 20,000 and under 5,000. Population will be determined by the figures of the 1910 census.

The number of subscriptions will be decided by the official returns in the hands of the Federal Reserve Bank here when the loan has closed.

KLEINMAN BACK TO DEFY HIS TORMENTORS

Lawrence, May 7.—Bearing the marks of the terrible beating he was given by masked vigilantes who kidnaped him from his hotel yesterday, Nathan Kleinman, strike leader, returned to Lawrence today and announced that he was here until victory was assured, "in spite of lawlessness and lynch law."

Kleinman returned from Lowell, where he took refuge after he had been blackjacked by his captors and kicked across the Lawrence city line. He registered at the Hotel Needham, taking the same room from which he was dragged yesterday.

Anthony Caparo, the other victim of the band of masked and armed marauders who forced an entry into the hotel, will return from Boston as soon as he is well enough, according to Leo Robbins of the general strike committee.

Versailles, France, May 7. — Germany heard her fate this afternoon.

In the very city where the German empire was created the new republic of Germany was told the penalty she must pay for inaugurating a four-years' orgy of bloodshed and rapine.

The scene was most impressive. Months of the hardest effort on the part of the allies and associated powers was crowned with a successful agreement on how peace should be restored to a war-torn world.

BRIBES ACCEPTED BY U. S. SHOE INSPECTORS, SAYS WITNESS

EX-FOREMAN TESTIFIES TO "SIGNING" VOUCHERS

Testimony that government inspectors had accepted bribes at the A. J. Bates Company shoe factory, Webster, was offered today in the federal court by Thomas Sherwood, formerly foreman at the plant.

Sherwood appeared as government witness against Frank I. Sears, vice-president and general manager of the company, who is being tried on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with contracts to supply army shoes.

Sherwood was indicted with Sears and pleaded guilty before the latter was placed on trial. The inspectors he named in his testimony as accepting "presents" were Frank Smith and Thomas H. Honan.

Sherwood said that he signed vouchers, under Sears' orders, for $50 on three occasions and again for $40, which sums were paid to Smith, and when Smith threatened to leave because he could get $1 a day more elsewhere, Sears told him that the extra money would be paid him if he would remain. According to the witness, he acted in the matter under protest.

He testified that $75 was paid to Honan in sums of $25 each. Chief Inspector Small, he said, "would pass anything." Small was seventy-six years old, Sherwood added, and did not know good soles from a poor one.

He was cross-examined by Major Thomas L. Walsh, one of the three attorneys for the defence. Under cross-examination, Sherwood admitted having testified before the Grand Jury without telling about the bribery charges. He only answered questions he was asked, he explained.

Miss Anna W. Holly, cashier for the A. J. Bates Company, followed Sherwood as a witness. She testified that she had given Sherwood money on eight different occasions between November, 1917, and March, 1918. Sherwood told her, she said, not to charge the sums to him, but to see Sears about it. She asked him whom she should charge the sums to, witness said, and he replied to profit and loss.

5 FOUND GUILTY IN THE 'SHIMMY' DANCE CASE

Court at Salem Imposes Fines; All Defendants Appeal

You can't "Shake the Shimmy" in Salem.

The five defendants in the so-called "Shimmy" cases were found guilty and were fined by Judge George S. Sears in Salem District Court today.

Robert T. Clark, Joseph A. Chouinard, Frank J. Hever and James H. Callahan, members of the Hix Six Club, were fined $50 each for giving an immoral entertainment in New and Then Hall, at which a dance described as the "Shimmy" was put on. They were also fined $50 each for maintaining a common nuisance.

Robert Parrish, a colored dancer, who took part in the dance, was fined $50 for participating in an immoral entertainment. All appealed. The four club members were held in $500 each and Parrish in $300.

"IMMORAL" DANCES.

Associate Justice Edward B. O'Brien of Lynn District Court, counsel for the complainant, the New England Watch and Ward Society, said in summing up:

"These dances are most immoral. They are of obscene character, especially in the presence of young people. They should not be tolerated in Salem. They are forbidden in Boston."

Judge Sears made no comment in disposing of the cases.

Patrolman Cornelius J. Keliher of Salem, the second and closing witness for the defence, said that he saw Parrish and his partner dancing in the hall. Asked to describe it, Keliher said:

"I would not. I don't know the 'Shimmy' from a buck-and-wing."

FIRST AFRICAN CHURCH ROW IN COURT

Petitioners Seek Mandamus Compelling Recognition as Members

Dissensions in the First African Methodist Episcopal Society, whose church building at the corner of Charles and Mt. Vernon streets is one of the landmarks of Boston, were heard today by Judge Loring of the Superior Court on petition of William Worthy, William H. Bright, Robert A. Simmons, Phyllis Howard, Augusta Batchelder and Sylvia Woddis, that a mandamus issue, commanding the Society and its pastor, Rev. Montrose W. Thornton, to recognize the petitioners as members of the church.

Incidentally, the proposed sale of the church site and division of the proceeds among the members figure in the controversy. The church was incorporated in 1859.

The petitioners claim they have been distranchised and deprived of their rights of membership wrongfully in violation of the by-laws of the society without due notice and without specifications of charges made against them.

The respondents claim that these petitioners, together with others, have been dropped from membership because they absented themselves from and refused to support the church.

There was a conflict of testimony and church rules and discipline were presented to Judge Loring for consideration.

CHARGE OFFICER WITH ROBBERY AT HARVARD

Warrant Sworn Out for Patrolman Doyle and Ex-Patrolman

A warrant charging them with the larceny of money, clothing and jewelry from Harvard Gold Coast students was sworn out against Patrolman Charles Doyle of the Brattle Square Station and Patrick J. McNamara, a pensioned policeman, following a police investigation of a robbery and a fight between students and early morning intruders at Claverly Hall, Mount Auburn street, today.

The affair has created a sensation in police and college circles of Cambridge. The warrant was issued by Morris Frankel of Cambridge District Court when the complaints of the students were said to have been followed by the discovery of some of the missing articles in the possession of the ex-cop. A hearing will be granted in the Cambridge Municipal Court on Tuesday, May 13.

Among the missing articles are two coats, a waistcoat, two pairs of trousers, two gold watches, a knife, a platinum chain and a pocketbook containing $4 in money.

While the battle between the two suspects and Gold Coast students, Ambrose Chambers of No. 2 Claverly Hall was cut under the eye and Doyle and McNamara were badly used up by the vigorous efforts of more than a dozen Harvard students to subdue them.

SAW MEN IN ROOM.

Roy Larsen, a student living at No. 44 Randolph Hall, on the opposite side of Mount Auburn street from Claverly Hall, told Lieutenant Ted Leahy of the Brattle Square Station that he saw two men in the room of Osgood Hooker at No. 35 Claverly Hall early today. They were trying on clothing and putting things under their clothes, he declared.

He turned the light on in his own room to better see their operations and then dashed downstairs and into Claverly Hall in a search for Osgood, who is a son of C. O. Osgood, a San Francisco broker. He found him in the room of Ambrose Chambers at No. 2 Claverly Hall.

The commotion which followed alarmed the intruders who fled, but in back of Claverly Hall Osgood encountered McNamara and tackled him, according to Larsen's story. Osgood, who is a husky fellow and a football player, had little trouble in subduing McNamara, but Doyle proved too much for Chambers and cut him under the eye in a fight near the Hasty Pudding Club.

FIND GOODS ON MEN.

By this time a dozen students, attracted by the noise, had taken a hand in the fray and the noise of the scuffle attracted the attention of Patrolmen Kearns and Dinan of the Brattle Square Station, and they took Doyle and McNamara to the station.

While they were being questioned, George H. Woods, a student living at No. 53 Apley court, reported that his room had been entered and his gold watch taken. A demand that the men be searched resulted in the finding, the police say, of pearl ornamented glasses on Doyle and McNamara. These were identified by Osgood as having been taken from his room.

No other articles were found on the men, but a search of the vicinity revealed some clothing on a lot near St. Paul's Catholic Church, and in the rear of Claverly Hall, near the Hasty Pudding Club, more clothing was found.

Doyle and McNamara were taken before Assistant Clerk Frankel in the Cambridge District Court today, and questioned, after which the warrants were issued. Both are married men. McNamara having six children and Doyle one. The latter has a good record on the force, and McNamara came into prominence several years ago through his thrilling capture of a holdup man named Tracy, who shot him. Despite his wound McNamara hung on to his man until he landed him in the station.

FINDS SLAYER'S VICTIM WAS HIS MOTHER

Dorchester Son, After 11 Years, Identifies Mrs. Wilson, Killed in Cambridge

A seemingly incredible tale of an eleven-year search for his missing mother, which came to an end by learning of her murder through the newspapers, was revealed by James D. Wilson, the son of Mrs. Annie Wilson, whose funeral took place today in Cambridge.

Wilson's fruitless search for his missing mother, extending for more than a decade, while both mother and son lived in adjacent sections of Greater Boston, reads like a figment of the imagination of a modern novelist. Truth is again demonstrated as stranger than fiction.

The remarkable experience of Wilson, who is thirty-eight years old and a printer, was related to the American today following his mother's burial at Mt. Benedict cemetery, Brookline.

IDENTIFIES MOTHER.

Mrs. Annie Wilson, a widow of fifty-five, was murdered Saturday morning in her home at No. 29 Marcella street, Cambridge. James F. Lydon, a twenty-two-year-old lodger and former soldier, is charged with the crime. Lydon is in East Cambridge jail awaiting action by the Grand Jury. He is declared to have been infatuated with the dead woman.

Wilson first believed that the Cambridge murder victim was his mother after reading a description of the dead woman in the newspaper of May 3. Mrs. Wilson was a cripple, having lost a part of one leg in early life.

Wilson hurried to Litchfield's undertaking rooms in Cambridgeport, where his fears were confirmed. He was overcome by grief.

According to Wilson's story he left home in Boston in September, 1918, following a bitter break up of his mother's home in the South End.

It was understood that his mother would purchase another house and notify him when she was again settled. He went to Maine to follow his trade. Mrs. Wilson took a position as housekeeper "somewhere in Boston."

No word reached him of his mother's whereabouts from that day to the day of her death. Investigation, following his return to Boston, revealed nothing as to his mother's movements following the previous September.

He spent most of his spare time in an effort to locate her in Boston. His ceaseless search was barren of results.

LEARNS OF TRAGEDY.

Finally he employed a detective, who worked for weeks on the baffling case. The detective reported that, to the best of his belief, Mrs. Wilson was in a neighboring almshouse.

Wilson's hopes rose, only to be dashed by the discovery that the inmate of the almshouse was another woman of the same name as his mother.

At length, as the years passed and no trace of the missing woman came to his attention, he abandoned hope and resumed his search.

On last Saturday the story of the Cambridge tragedy caught his eye. Because of the identifying fact of the missing limb he was able to identify the strangled woman as his long-lost mother.

He hurried to the undertaker's establishment, only to find her—dead.

"It doesn't seem possible that we could have been so much alone and yet not be able to locate each other during all these years," he said.

Wilson lives at No. 110 Alexander street, Dorchester.

LOST, ONE SMALL BROWN SHOE, BRAND NEW

Madam Frances, Who Offers Reward, Explains There Is No Romance Attached to It

Lost, one brown shoe; reward, Madam Frances, 79 Harvard street, Brookline.

Romance cheered up the imaginative reader. He may have stolen her little slipper—brown—just stolen it to remember her by. And then he went and lost it, and now the advertisement. Doubtless that little brown shoe was worth more than all world beside to him.

"By no means," explained Madam Frances. "I am responsible for that ad, and the high cost of shoe leather is directly behind it. Nobody any more values slippers for romance—not with shoes at $12 a pair and still going up. Fact is, 'twas my sister's shoe. Bought at a sale at a bargain, and never worn. I took 'em—it and its mate—in to Boston to get 'em fitted to neat little pump buckles.

"Sequel? Subway crush; thin bag containing the shoes; brushing elbows with neighbors; heel of the missing pump working through the bag; shoe gone; mate only in my possession; was glad its fellow. Therefore reward."

"But," and Madam Frances sighed, "but—"

"I don't believe it will ever be found, now. Separated, those pumps will go their long journey, unmated and forlorn." More sighs.

So it was not romance, and Cinderella did not figure. Just blame the high cost of shoes, and the luxury tax, that's all. But, ineidentally, if anyone found that shoe Madam Frances is ready with a reward.

WIFE WITH $4,500,000 ALIMONY STILL LONGS FOR HER HUSBAND

MRS. KENDALL SAYS QUARREL MAY BE PATCHED UP

New York, May 7.—From that wondrous, moon-drenched night when little Nellie Ballentine tucked up her shining curls and struggled through an evening's dancing with her first train—from then until this day her heart and life have been all for Lyman Kendall.

And it makes little difference that the laws of man and the courts of Maine last Friday broke the legal chain that had held them together for twenty years. In the separation Mr. Kendall settled on his wife money and property valued at $4,500,000 and an annual income of $100,000 a year.

On the piano in Mrs. Kendall's magnificent drawing room at No. 529 Park avenue is a picture of "her old sweetheart," as she calls him, set in a hand-carved Japanese frame. She talked of that picture today, so:

"Here yet? Of course it is here yet. It is my dearest treasure. Once you have money, have millions, you understand how little it counts for. From the first evening I saw him until this moment there has been no othe man in my life. He has been everything; and so splendid and fine.

MAY PATCH IT UP.

"I have a feeling we may patch it up yet. I knbw he is very fond of me and misses me, just as I miss him. You cannot give up something that has become a very part of your own life without a terrific struggle, I wonder if it is worth the struggle.

"Lyman calls me up on the telephone every night. I know he is watchful of my comfort and happiness. Last night he told me he'd been thinking about how far the garage was from the house up at Bar Harbor and said he was going to send up a check and have it moved so I could get the cars with less trouble.

"He was the same dear Lyman I have always known when he came to see me last week. He wanted to be sure that I wasn't broken up over this and if there wasn't some little thing he could do to make it easier for me. Later he went to see my lawyer, William Sullivan, to learn from him whether I was all right.

"We have been away from each other a year now, he living down on his estate in Virginia and me up here with my dancing and frolics and society. But there's no mistaking the void both of us have felt. My friends laugh at me and say Lyman will be courting me again soon. I almost wish it could be. I'd never have gotten the divorce except I believed with all my heart it would make him happier to be free.

ISOLATES HERSELF.

"I have felt ever since that Summer we were caught in the war in Europe that all the ground of common interest and sympathy had slipped from under us. He was miserable in New York, and if he was to be he would be grinding his very life out down on Wall street.

"And at his country place in Virginia among the pigs and cows and chickens that he so love—ugh! I am wretched. I hate the country. I had to live there for three years once, and I know."

Mrs. Kendall has all but isolated herself since her return from Maine last week. She has property values at millions. It is half of the fortune built up for them during the years they lived together. But Mrs. Kendall finds it doesn't make up for the loneliness which has stolen into her life through the divorce she sought.

Tears rose to her eyes too many times while she told this story, and little catching sobs to her throat too often for one to doubt how real it is.

"Sometimes it seems ages ago—again just a few days—since one night when I'd just come home from boarding school in New York with my heart set on going to a dance in town to show off my pretty frocks. My father was running for Governor of Idaho then, and was living on a ranch in the country. There was a dance every night in Boise, and it was a great occasion for the young folks.

HOW SHE GOT TO DANCE.

"Father said I couldn't go that night because there wasn't a horse to spare. But I put on the most gorgeous of all my New York raiment, my first dress with a train, and told him I was going to sit in the road until somebody came and picked me up and took me.

"It wasn't long. A young army officer came flashing up in all his shining braid and a brand-new car, and told me he was going to invite me to the dance. On the way he asked me if I'd heard of the handsome stranger who'd come from the South and was stealing the hearts of all the pretty girls in town.

"When we got to the dance I had a frightful time with my train, and once got so tangled up in it that a tall, handsome man I didn't know laughed out loud, and I turned crimson.

"It was Lyman. We met, and he said something about what a time 'Little Nellie Ballentine' was having with her first train. His laugh was so nice that I laughed, too. We fell so easily into lovemaking. Before the evening was up we were pledged to each other.

"Then Lyman was making $35 a month. I told him I wouldn't marry a man with less than $5,000, so we set out together to get it. Father had been in the Senate and had some influence. He helped Lyman get some government contracts and within two years he had $7,000.

BOTH PLANNED ON FORTUNE.

"During all that time we had been figuring out together how we could make a great fortune. We watched the newspapers with our whole souls and played the stock market—on paper. But we succeeded so marvelously we decided to stake our destinies on our good judgment and put our poor $7,000 in Wall street. I'll never forget how mad it made my father and how he raved and called me a silly, brainless little girl with nothing on my head except my curls. But we believed so steadfastly that we came to New York and played the game.

"The first year we made $55,000, the next $250,000. Then we lost. But Lyman grew feverishly absorbed in it. It was his whole life. He began to study it like a science, and his luck came back.

"Those years, anxious and feverish for us both, were the most wonderful ones we had.

"Then the Summer of the war when we were caught between two battles and had such frightful and harrowing experiences. We were worn out and haggard from it. It seems he's never been the same and that he's blamed me for getting into it at all.

"Since then we have just drifted farther and farther apart.

ADVISE NEWLY-WEDS.

"To any young married couple I loved I would give this advice:

"Try to keep your interests close together. Learn to play the game the other likes. Wear the clothes he likes. Find an interest in the society he likes. Find the attractive things in his friends.

"If he wants you to have expensive things he can't really afford let him get them for you—sometimes. And don't let him become all absorbed in his business. And, you, don't become too absorbed in your gayeties and your dancing. And keep close together."

R. I. PICKPOCKETS TERMED AS VAGRANTS

Providence, May 7.—Pickpockets and gangsters who are members of the "Protective Order of Pickpockets," are said to be assured of quick release when arrested in this city.

The arrest of seventy-one alleged "crowd-workers" and their subsequent release on bail is the talk of the underworld. When another "headquarters" the aggregate of $1,052 was found.

Winfred Jordan of Boston had in his possession a bracelet, pair of cuff links and other small articles, according to Chief Inspector Maguire.

Police officials say they can only charge gangsters with "vagrancy," which is punishable by a fine and sentence of the latter is suspended from and that is said to be the finish of the case.

HOUSE UNDER SUSPICION.

Boston private detectives joined the State and county authorities today in an effort to unravel the mystery of the killing of Mrs. Broadwell, whose brutal murder has aroused this section of the State.

Previously have been found by the police who declare that they saw Mrs. Broadwell i na South End house on the night of the murder, denial is made by the landlady that she was there. This house is under suspicion by the police as the possible scene of the crime.

HAD NOT BEEN DRINKING.

The autopsy of the body by State Pathologist R. H. Stone showed that Mrs. Broadwell had not been a passive party to any proposals by her murderer. The autopsy showed that she had not been drinking liquor and that she was the victim of a particularly savage assault.

It was impossible to learn whether the violence of the abuse suffered while the hands of Mrs. Broadwell were tied behind her back, was the work of an abnormal man or one frenzied with anger.

A moral cleanup of resorts in and around Barre where vice is practiced with little effort at concealment and the facts of which are common knowledge to every one in the city has been demanded as a result of the Broadwell case.

MISSING BOY AND NURSE RETURN

Spent Night in Everett While Detectives and Police Searched

After having been missing from home twenty-four hours while the police of several cities were searching for them, five-year-old James F. Demain and his sixty-eight-year-old nurse, Mrs. Mary Boyle, calmly walked into the Demain home at No. 49 Laurel street, Melrose, today.

The pair left home at 10 o'clock yesterday to go on an errand to Melrose centre. They went to a local store and then disappeared from sight.

When they did not return last night, police were notified and with private detectives were conducting a search when the nurse and boy charge returned.

Mrs. Boyle declared she had been stopping overnight in Everett and was much surprised when informed of the excitement she had caused by failing to return with the boy, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Demain.

RAIN PUTS OFF FIRST LEG OF U.S. FLIGHT

Aviators, Awaiting Better Conditions to Start for Halifax, Tune Up Machines

CHILD BITTEN BY BROCKTON 'MAD' DOG

Policeman Also Attacked as Animal Runs Amuck Through Streets

Brockton, May 7.—Three-year-old boy was bitten, a policeman attacked and many persons terrorized by a supposedly mad dog which ran amuck down Belmont street today.

The child is Thomas Lynch of No. 22 Chestnut avenue, who was badly lacerated on the left cheek. He was standing at Belmont street and Chester avenue, near his home, directly in the path of the animal.

Seeing the child attacked, Patrolman Earl Vaughan started to the rescue. The dog leaped upon him and buried its teeth in the sleeve of the officer's coat. He tore holes in both coat and trousers, but did not reach the flesh. The dog then rushed away.

On account of the large number of people in the streets Vaughan did not dare fire.

Joseph Ring of No. 754 Main street, seized the dog after closing on Belmont street, and managed to hold it by the collar until the officer arrived. The dog was taken to the police station and held for examination by a veterinary. The little boy's wounds were cauterized at the office of Dr. J. P. Shaw.

DEDHAM NEEDS $18,000 FOR SOLDIERS' CLOTHES

Will the town of Dedham go through with the job it started when it furnished 160 discharged soldiers and sailors with new clothing, $30 each? This is the question which today confronts the selectmen who if they wish to avoid disqualification must ask for an appropriation of about $18,000 to outfit all the boys. The 160 already taken care of have appeared in their new civilian clothes today. Hundreds of other applications have been sent out from the service or about to be discharged are on file. The first appropriation was meant originally for a parade, but the citizens thought the purchase of new clothing a more practical way of showing appreciation.

Astor Game When Ship Hit Mine in the North Sea

New York, May 7.—"There isn't a more valuable ivy gamer man in the Navy than young Astor," is the praise bestowed on Lieut. Vincent Astor, executive officer of the U. S. S. Nantucket, who carried many officers of the Inter-Allied Armistice Commission to Germany, he capt. F. C. Pollard, commander of the Nantucket.

"It was rough enough when the ship struck a mine on the 17th, but it was worse than that for a hundred men when the mine struck on forward," Capt. Pollard said. "It didn't go off right away, but all night as the ship and waves rolled it, it would bump against steel and deck stanchions. The men below came rushing on deck, fully dressed, and had them in perfect control. We were all waiting for an explosion below and getting ready to take to the sea. Astor volunteered up to the bridge that he was going below. When he came up he reported the damage was not great."

DECLARE DANCE HALLS BREED CRIME

Clubwomen of Providence Complain That Police Close Their Eyes to What Is Going On

Providence, R. I., May 7.—Providence dance halls are "breeders of crime," and the young girls are hard to resist the rush by men in uniform and servicemen, who trade on their sympathy and patriotism, "feeling," it is charged by Mrs. H. Lincoln Hosmer, prominent clubwoman of this city.

According to Mrs. Hosmer, the police are afflicted with moral astigmatism and do not see what is going on before their very eyes.

"The moral conditions at some of the dance halls are appalling," Mrs. Hosmer declares. "Reports by investigators are alarming. Young men to borrowed girls' gloves, and the escorts sympathies of young girls with sinister intent. Mothers complain that their daughters are crazed by their surroundings. No respectable girl can walk the streets of Providence after dark without being insulted as a result of the wild, open conditions existing in the dance halls of this city.

"The police reply to these charges that there is a 'padlock' law in force, but that it is hard to find what licenses are issued in accordance with the law."

Clubwoman declares that fourteen of the underworlds are the real appointees of the police, and that they are "dupes" to secure licenses because of the investigation and report that must be made by the captain of the district to the police commissioners.

The attitude of clubwomen have apparently had no effect in lessening the number of dances at these halls as twenty-five applications were granted this week and nearly as many more have already been filed for next week.

NEW CANAAN DEATH CLEW FOUND

Woman Missing More Than Year Believed to Be One Found Slain

Hartford, Ct., May 7.—A clew to the identity of the woman who was found murdered in the woods near New Canaan last week was given today by J. T. Fitzsimmons of No. 21 Buckingham street, this city, who says he has reason to believe that the dead woman was his wife. According to the description given by the police tallies to the minutest detail with that of his wife, who disappeared mysteriously nearly a year ago.

The description given of the New Canaan woman gives the color of the hair as chestnut; the color of Mrs. Fitzsimmons' hair was a reddish brown, and the only shade that might easily be called chestnut. She was about 5 feet, 3 inches tall, weight about 125 pounds. The same as given by the New Canaan authorities. As to her teeth we are missing, in the case of the woman found in New Canaan. Her teeth had been quite good, and she had dental work done.

PEATCHES CORRESPOND.

Where this was done Fitzsimmons does not know, as it was done before they were married. Although he is of the opinion that she had had work done on them since, he is not certain of the exact character of the dental work.

Mrs. Fitzsimmons' face was oval, with small features and a nose that was quite small, the same as in the New Canaan case. Her lips were thin, chin rounded, ears small and flat, hands quite small and not short, as given in the New Canaan description.

Other marks on the body of Mrs. Fitzsimmons which do not agree are the left arm on the inside of the elbow, and not on the left leg about the knee, a mole on the left leg about the knee, a scar from a cut on the scalp near the left side of the forehead, and a mole on the left side of the body in New Canaan. Mrs. Fitzsimmons must have had a large mole in the pit of her stomach.

WAS DAY STATE WOMAN.

The body, however, was badly decomposed when found and the undertaker who prepared the body for burial and the officials who conducted the autopsy could not be sure that these marks were not there. According to Sergeant Vivian, the head made of the scalp had been carefully scrutinized in order to determine if such a mark was there.

Fitzsimmons married about eight years ago while he was living in Boston. He was employed by Peabody, Stevens & Co., and later by Jones, according to Fitzsimmons, a niece of Mrs. Fitzsimmons, who had committed suicide. Mrs. Fitzsimmons' parents are not living. Fitzsimmons has been in Providence for about two years and has been employed by the Providence Gas Co. He has relatives in Worcester.

BOSTON SHOWS GAIN IN DRIVE

Is $4,467,000 Over Previous Day's Total—Vermont Leads States

Every lapse from the daily average means an added load on the remaining days.

MUST KEEP NAME CLEAR.

Washington officials hoped today's subscriptions throughout the country would bring the loan total to the mark of $2,500,000,000. The nationwide Loan goal is $4,500,000,000.

N. Penrose Hallowell, executive chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee of New England, warned the public today against leaving "a blot of everlasting shame on the record sheets of the last Liberty Loan." In a vigorous statement Mr. Hallowell said:

"Four days left, and $146,459,000 to be subscribed by New England! This is the amount between victory and defeat. Is it conceivable that the people of New England, who have glorified in the proud record of their sons and daughters in service, should themselves quit at the eleventh hour and leave a blot of everlasting shame on the record sheets of the last Liberty Loan? Anyone who heard the appeal of Secretary Glass at Symphony Hall last night could not fail to feel a patriotic thrill, and to pledge himself to do his full share before it is too late.

"We are not going to be beaten, as I know he is intimated. There is yet plenty of time to subscribe; it only takes a few minutes. The final call is made in full confidence that we will rally and keep the fair name of New England clean, as it always has been. There is no time to lose, however; action is needed at once.

New England's subscription for the Loan drive's fourteenth day (Tuesday) was $39,947,000. This was the second best day of the campaign so far, exceeded only by the $51,000,000 of the opening day. It brought the district total for 14 days up to $226,541,000.

Pittsfield reported flying over the top today with 30 per cent. above its quota of $2,633,000, and with 8,222 persons joining in the subscription.

Millis was $16,800 over its quota of $41,000. Amherst passed its quota of $257,000.

Manchester, N. H., reported having $2,200,000 toward its quota of $3,000,000.

ANOTHER MAINE CITY OVER.

In Maine, Augusta went over, being the fourth city of that State to reach oversubscription. Other Maine places were Lewiston, Bangor, Houlton and Rockland, which has nearly $300,000.

The Scoville Manufacturing company of Waterbury, Ct., has taken $850,000 of Victory Notes. The Union Institution for Savings, Boston, has taken an additional $225,000, making in all $575,000 on the Fifth Loan. Other additions were: Boston Insurance Company, additional $100,000, making a total of $150,000; Boston Board of Fire Underwriters $175,850, making a total of $405,000; H. H. Long Company, Framingham, Mass., $500,000.

During the rest of the stay of the captive balloon in the city officers connected with the balloon company will explain the army methods of using this adjunct of the air service.

At 6:30 tonight Lieutenant W. C. McDaniels will speak to the watchers gathered around the ground station of the balloon. Tomorrow night at the same hour E. J. Dowling will speak.

AMAZED AT DELAY.

Victory Loan officials here are amazed at the apparent slackness in subscriptions. They are unable to assign a reason for the laxity with which this district has responded to the nation's call for dollars—not lives—to back up Uncle Sam in his dealings with the rest of the world.

However, they have determined that the loan shall be subscribed. No effort is being spared to make it a success. Every available means is being used to induce citizens to buy Victory Bonds, and if already a purchaser, the VD of finance is trust before them in an effort to obtain a double subscription.

That the loan will be subscribed in the determination of all connected with the drive, New England's honor is at stake. It is pointed out, and New England's honor is not to be held lightly.

Every branch of civil and official life is called upon to aid in the last days of the campaign. Bankers, brokers, lawyers, and, in fact, all professional men and women are taking an active part in the campaign.

Vermont is leading the New England States in percentage, with 89 per cent. of its quota subscribed. Connecticut is second with a percentage of 79.9, and Massachusetts is third with a percentage of 48.

Although the appeal for subscriptions to the Victory Loan is urgent, and the demand for individual subscribers of supreme importance, if the loan is to become a success in New England, Victory Loan officials announce that 378 New England cities and towns have fully subscribed or oversubscribed their quotas.

GLASS IS CONFIDENT.

Secretary of the Treasury Carter E. Glass delivered a stirring address in behalf of the loan at Symphony Hall. He predicted that despite the present signs the Victory Loan would be a success. He declared that "love and duty to the government" will be the basis factor in bringing the loan campaign to a successful conclusion.

Secretary Glass was the principal speaker in behalf of the loan. Vice-Admiral Sims, who commanded the American overseas fleet during the war, was to have taken part in the day's Victory Loan program, but found it necessary to cancel his speaking engagements upon the advice of his physician.

A real air battle was staged over Boston Common as an added feature to the campaign. Aviators who have had victorious clashes with enemy fliers above the fighting lines took part in the battle. Of course, the American planes were victorious.

New England is asked to come to the front and subscribe its full quota before the close of the campaign, and, when the full figures for the campaign are announced, a substantial oversubscription should be recorded as her answer to Uncle Sam's call for dollars with which to make the final settlement.

That a huge task faces the district is admitted, but New England is equal to that task, if the record given below is any indication of its ability to properly perform when the real test comes. In the words of a Victory Loan official, "The time of the real rest is NOW."

Loan Sidelights

The Latvian-Americans of Greater Boston will show their enthusiasm for the Victory (or Iron) Liberties Loan Campaign at their mass meeting in the Warren Rink, Dorchester, Monday, Thursday evening from 7 to 10 o'clock.

The Boston Trades Committee reports Industrial Honor Flags awarded to Elliot Savings Bank, 760 Dudley street, Roxbury, 100 per cent.; Algonkian Wave Co., No. 10 High street, 100 per cent.

The program at the mass meeting includes the following features, songs by the Lettonia National chorus, the members of which will be dressed in the costumes of old Latvia; a fire will be solos by Miss Fatty, many Latvians in costume will be among the crowd to solicit subscriptions to the Loan, and Mrs. J. J. Rimsevich will be at the piano.

For extraordinary courage in action, Private Harvey S. Brown of Chicago was decorated today with the French Croix de Guerre by Commandant William R. Rush of the Charlestown Navy Yard. Private Brown is a member of the Marine Corps. He was brought over for the ceremonies from the Marine Hospital, where he has been convalescing from two wounds.

His citation was awarded by the Commander-in-Chief of the Northeastern French Armies. It reads:

"Gave proof of the greatest courage and the greatest endurance in carrying messages to advanced positions through violent artillery fire on June 9, 1918."

The ceremonies took place in the presence of the entire marine command, who stood at "present arms." Following the award, the corps was reviewed.

JEWS TO BOOST LOAN ON COMMON

Hundreds to Take Part in Victory Demonstration at Parkman Bandstand

Tonight at the Parkman Bandstand on Boston Common, Jewish night will be held under the auspices of the Liberty Loan Jewish Committee.

Hundreds of torches will blaze and hundreds of Jewish children will sing folk songs, while decorated automobiles and lines of patriotic men, women and children will parade around the Common.

Miniature holy scrolls will be presented to the purchasers of Victory Notes. Prominent speakers will address the gathering. Several novel features will be presented.

NOTE BUYING URGED.

The Liberty Loan Jewish committee has issued an appeal to the Jewish working men and women, urging them to buy Victory Notes.

It says, in part:

"The greatest of wars is over, and the cost of victory must be paid and obligations entailed in the safeguarding of democracy must be met in full. I thank God, we can pay this debt with dollars alone—not with dollars and blood, not with loss of our liberties and years of taxation of an amount which would forever destroy the hopes and aspirations of a free people, had we failed in this great struggle.

ASKED ONLY TO LOAN.

"We are not asked to give, but to loan our savings to the nation. We are not asked to forego a profit or lose such interest as the private banks might pay for the loan of our savings. On the contrary, the nation will pay a high interest and give us by far a better security than any private institution.

"In addition, the government will use the wage-earners' savings in behalf of the interest of all our people and to promote their general welfare instead of enriching merely a few who are already well to do.

"Let us, therefore, express our feelings of rejoicing and manifest our gladness for the triumph of our cause and the victory of arms by standing solidly behind our government in peace as in war."

Compers Says Wilson Made No Promise to Labor Regarding Prohibition

New York, May 7.—Samuel Gompers, through his secretary, Guy A. Oyster, denied a report that President Wilson had promised the American Federation of Labor delegates to the international labor conference at Paris that he would set aside the provisions of the law making the United States dry on July 1 if he found upon his return that the country actually opposed the measure.

"I was secretary of the mission," said Mr. Oyster, "and I can speak for the delegates and for Mr. Gompers in denying the report. Mr. Gompers' ideas on prohibition, however, are well known. It may be true that the President made such a promise but if so it was not made to the delegates from the American Federation of Labor."

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the succesful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with "a dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad complexion or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result.

Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Saving children's lives in Boston

Do you know that one out of every three children in this city is suffering from some remediable defect? That child may be yours!

Do you know that four million children in this country are in need of immediate attention? Do you realize what this means in personal grief today—in national disaster tomorrow?

War—Bolshevism—plague—none are as terrible as this parasite which is eating our homes from within. We must save our children!

Dr. L. Emmett Holt in the first magazine article he has ever written sounds a real warning. The great authority on child welfare tells what to do—but leaves it to every American mother and father to carry out the logical remedies.

In the same issue, 4 pages on interior decorating and 15 pages devoted to Good Housekeeping Institute; 14 pages of the latest fashions—67 charming illustrations.

SAYS 'RIOTERS' EXPECTED TROUBLE

Flag Found on One, "Probably Carried for Emergency," Declares Roxbury Witness

That the American flag on the person of one of the participants in the May Day parade which ended in the Roxbury riots was "probably for use in case of emergency," and that the Socialist paraders anticipated trouble, was admitted today by Martha Foley, one of the alleged rioters, in Roxbury court.

The admission was made in cross-examination. Miss Foley had testified that the police were brutal, that they fired into the crowd before any of the paraders drew a gun, and that she saw no revolvers in the hands of civilians.

She accused soldiers and sailors of beating Socialists with clubs during the disturbance and said that at Station 9, after the riots, sixteen women were put in cells meant to accommodate eight; four.

The defendant denied that the police reasoned with the mob and tried to discourage violence, but said that on the contrary they used force at the first opportunity. Miss Foley gave her occupation as that of writer and lecturer and said she was supported by her family.

Leon C. Handy of No. 27 Warren avenue, editor of the Wage Earner, and not a Socialist, said he was on the sidewalk when the police charged the street crowds, and did not believe them justified. He said most of the rioting was done by men in uniform, or anti-Socialistic civilians.

Elizabeth Lansfeld of No. 99 Elm street, a dressmaker and Socialist, testified that after the riots hundreds of boys insulted all women suspected of "radicalism," and the police gave such women no protection, but advised them to go home.

Supt. Crowley Has Man Charged With Larceny of Tires Freed by Court

Police Superintendent Crowley today took the witness stand before Judge Creed in the Municipal Court and helped to have dismissed a charge of larceny of two automobile tires for which J. Leo McKenna of Roxbury had been arrested.

McKenna's arrest was one of the aftermaths of the Roxbury riot on May Day. McKenna greatly assisted the police in their arrests, making frequent trips between the station house and the scene of the disorder, and carrying their loads of policemen and their prisoners. Somebody cut the rear tires of his auto and Superintendent Crowley at the time told him the city would bear the expense of new ones.

When McKenna selected two tires from the George R. Bascom Company on Columbus avenue and told the clerk to charge them to Superintendent Crowley he was arrested by Special Officer Ryan. The misunderstanding was straightened out in Judge Creed's court, and McKenna was discharged, but the police hold the two tires until authorized by the city government to return them, to McKenna.

CODMAN CASE BAIL IS REDUCED TO $25,000

Newport, R. I., May 7.—The case of George Peabody Eustis of Washington against Ogden Codman of New York for alleged slander at a luncheon given by Mrs. A. D. B. Pratt last October, came up again in Superior Court on motion by Mr. Eustis' counsel, who moved to be allowed to amend the declaration.

This motion was granted and ten days allowed for the filing of the new plea.

Mr. Codman had moved to have the ad damnum reduced and also the bail of $100,000. Nothing was done in regard to the ad damnum, but the bail bond was reduced to $25,000.

The lock of hair was not claimed even after a list was posted of articles awaiting their owners upon identification.

DISCUSS PLANS FOR DRIVE OF 'SALLIES'

General Cole Presides at Conference Preliminary to Opening of Campaign

Brigadier-General Chas. H. Cole presided today at the first meeting in the Salvation Army drive for its Home Service Fund. General Cole is chairman of the Boston committee. The conference was held at the National Shawmut Bank.

Plans were discussed for the campaign, which opens May 19 and extends to May 26. New England's quota is $2,230,000 and Boston's $700,000. Men of the Yankee Division declare themselves as ranked solidly behind the drive and determined to "do their bit" for the organization which did so much for them overseas. They will never forget the lassies who, regardless of personal security, followed the soldiers to the front lines and served them coffee and doughnuts under shell fire.

Many Yankee Division officers are on the committee with General Cole. Its members include:

Brigadier-General John H. Sherburne, Colonel George W. Bunnell, Colonel Robert E. Goodwin, Colonel Edward L. Logan, Colonel William J. Keville, Major Carroll Swan, United State Senators Lodge and Walsh, Mayor Peters, Andrew Adie, John F. Burke, Louis A. Coolidge, Lewis A. Crossett, Julius L. Eismann, Arthur F. Estabrook, Louis A. AUGUST WILL FIND A. E. F. AT HOME

Only Small Detachments to Stay in France, Says Baker

By International News Service.

Washington, May 7.—Practically all of the American Expeditionary Forces will be out of France before the end of August, Secretary of War Baker announced today, at his first conference with press representatives since his return from Europe.

It would be necessary, he said, to leave small detachments in France to wind up the business of the army and to protect property that has not yet been turned back to the owners, but this number would be very small. The withdrawal of the army of occupation, which now numbers about 200,000 men, was a matter to be determined in Paris, the secretary added.

Secretary Baker explained that his chief mission in Europe was to confer with the liquidation commission as to the disposal of much American property. There is considerable immovable material, such as docks, storehouses, etc., and millions of dollars' worth of mobile materials, which can be absorbed by foreign countries, he stated.

All that is sold, he explained, represented a vast saving in money and shipping space which would be required to bring it back to this country. No definite arrangements for the disposition of the property has yet been made, but negotiations are progressing satisfactorily, the Secretary stated.

Secretary Baker was emphatic in his praise of the A. E. F. University at Beaune, and of the work that it is accomplishing. The university consists of eleven separate institutions where every trade and profession is being taught. There are more than 9,000 students and in addition there are some three thousand American soldiers attending British and French universities.

"It is the belief of the department that there will not be a single illiterate man discharged from the army," the Secretary asserted.

JEWS OF NATION COMING FOR CONVENTION

Schiff and Guggenheim Among Speakers at Sessions of Reform Congregations

Extensive plans are being completed for the three days' convention of the Jewish congregations, which will open at Temple Israel Monday evening, May 19, and will continue at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, May 20 to 22, inclusive.

This is considered the most important affair of its kind ever held in Boston. Prominent men of the Jewish faith, including Jacob H. Schiff of New York, Julius Rosenwald of Chicago, Daniel Guggenheim of New York, and Adolph Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, will be present throughout the convention.

Dr. Samuel Schulman of New York will deliver the principal address at the opening service on Monday evening, May 19. Tuesday morning an address will be delivered by J. Walter Freiberg. Tuesday afternoon Louis Grossman of Cincinnati will deliver the centenary address on the life and work of Dr. Wise, and Wednesday morning Daniel P. Bayer of New York will speak on the work of the organization.

Wednesday evening a banquet will be given at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, at which time the speakers will be J. Walter Freiberg, Jacob H. Schiff, Louis Marshall, president of the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods; Dr. Edward N. Gallisch of Richmond, Va.; Harry W. Asher of New Haven, and Rabbi Abram Hillel of Cleveland.

A. I. Hatchesky of Boston has been appointed permanent chairman of the proceedings.

This convention, to be held under the auspices of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, will be the most important in the history of the organization. It is the centenary of its founder, Isaac M. Wise.

Problems of vital and far-reaching importance to the Jews of America will be taken up for discussion, in connection with the religious and reconstructive period of the Jewish race throughout the world.

Repeat Advice About Spring Blood Purifier

Proves Many Serious Ailments Due to Poisons in System.

Says Nothing Better Than Sulphur, Cream of Tartar and Herb Extracts in Tablet Called "Sulpherb Tablets"

The wisdom of ages placed in a little sugar coated tablet—Sulpherb Tablets! Remember grandma's remedy—Sulphur and cream of tartar mixed in molasses—it was a nasty dose, but it saved thousands of lives by purifying the blood in the Spring. Thousands avoided typhoid fever and serious illness by taking it. Now you can get the benefits by taking a little tablet regularly containing the blood purifying, system regulating medicine that grandma relied on.

Constipation, inactive kidneys are overcome and vitality restored, rheumatic pain and many other poison symptoms vanish after a course of Sulpherb Tablets. The best medicine for spring lethargy and that sluggish blood. Every package is guaranteed to satisfy you or money back. In sealed, tubes to protect everywhere. Be sure to get genuine Sulpherb Tablets and Sulpher Tablets.—Advertisement.

Second Salem Still in Three Days Unearthed

Salem, May 7.—Another whiskey still, the second in three days, was literally unearthed by Lieutenants Pelletier and Barnett of the police today. It was buried near a tree outside a lodging house on Norman street. Nearby were three pints of home-made whiskey.

To the house the police found whiskey dregs in a jug and coloring fluid intended to give the liquor the proper hue, they stated.

A few days ago the police arrested Samuel Perepih for having a still in his cellar.

MILITARY FUNERAL FOR AUTO VICTIM

Military funeral services for Frederick Donahue, who was killed Sunday in an automobile accident in Newton, were held today in St. Bernard's Church, West Newton. The tragedy occurred when a car in which Donahue was driving with two friends crashed into a telephone pole.

Rev. James Holland officiated at solemn high mass. Donahue was a member of Battery D, 304th Field Artillery. Members of Company C, 101st Infantry, acted as pall bearers, and members of the Newton State Guard served as a firing squad at the grave side in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

MISS TILESTON IS BACK FROM MACEDONIA

Brookline Woman, Here on Leave, Decorated by Serbian Government

New York, May 7.—After spending more than three years in the wilds of Macedonia, where for weeks at a time she saw no living person, with the exception of an occasional soldier patrol, Miss Amelia Tileston of Allerton street, Brookline, Mass., arrived today on the Italian transport America from Genoa on a six weeks' leave.

At the end of her short vacation she says she will return to Serbia to continue her welfare work among the people of that country.

Miss Tileston went overseas on March 4, 1916, and after working with the American Red Cross in Italy left in October for Macedonia and Serbia, entering the latter country with the Serbian and allied armies when they made their advance into that country and reclaimed it from the Bulgarians.

She did hospital work for a time, but the most of her activities was conducting comfort stations for the British soldiers near the front lines in the mountain fastnesses of Macedonia.

For her untiring work and heroism under fire and for her many acts while attached to the Serbian command she was decorated with the Svetska or Saint's Cross and also the Kraljica Marija or Queen Mary's Cross. Saint's Cross is the highest honor that can be given a woman by the Serbian government.

"My only reason for returning home is because I have suffered so much of late afron malaria which I contracted while sleeping out in the open, many times on the wet ground without even a blanket to cover me.

"It was a wonderful experience and one which I will always remember, but just as soon as I recover, I intend to return to my work there. For fifteen months I was the only person doing relief work with the Serbian soldiers at the front lines, outside of the hospitals, and for six months I was the only American woman in Macedonia.

"Later I co-operated with Sergeant-Major Flora Sanders, the only woman who was fighting with the Serbians in the trenches and together we continued our work among the soldiers.

"Sergeant Sanders is the only woman I have ever known to do trench fighting with the allied armies outside of Russia. She fought with the Serbians for nearly a year, and was wounded seventeen times while in action and received several decorations.

"While I was in Macedonia and in Serbia I reached range with soldiers at all hours of the night, and not once was I treated except with the greatest regard and courtesy."

FINED FOR RUNNING OVER CHILD'S WAGON

For running over a child's toy express wagon, Morris Levison of Waltham bridge was fined $35 today in Waltham Court. He appealed and was held in $300.

Levison was driving an automobile in Waltham on April 26. Turning the corner at High and Lowell streets, he ran down the toy wagon, which was being drawn by its child owner, William Crowe. Levison was halted by Inspector Lawrence McCarthy and charged with exceeding the speed limit.

SECOND ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE SUCCESSFUL

David Lampert, forty-nine and married, committed suicide by hanging in a stable in the rear of his home on White street, East Boston, today. It was his second attempt. He was a junk collector and was last seen alive at 5 o'clock today by his wife. His body was discovered by his son. Lampert made his first attempt to hang himself several weeks ago.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Drop Freezone on a touchy corn, then lift that corn off with fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic! No humbug!

A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.

Rigger Is Caught in Tackle 60 Feet in Air, Loses Hand

Portsmouth, N. H., May 7.—With his hand nearly torn off while he was suspended sixty feet in the air working on a traveling crane, Morris Kennedy of Everett, Mass., was rescued by fellow workmen at the Atlantic Shipyard, Fremont's Point, N. H., today and taken to the hospital.

In pointing him it was necessary to cut several feet of the cable and take it to the hospital before the mangled hand could be extricated. The hand later had to be amputated.

Kennedy was employed as a rigger at the shipyard, and was working on the rigging of the mast. His left hand became entangled in the rigging. He was helpless for some time before his cries attracted the attention of other employes.

Kennedy was treated first at the shipyard hospital, and by company physician, Dr. J. J. Carr, and was later taken to the Portsmouth Hospital, where the amputation was performed. Kennedy is thirty-nine and unmarried.

ANTI-ANARCHY BILL REPORTED TO HOUSE

Committee Favors Bates Measure; Reports Adversely on "Siberian Spy" Bill

The Bates "anti-anarchy" bill, stripped of many of the features declared by the radicals as "dangerous," but still loaded with drastic punishments for alleged promotion of anarchy, was reported favorably today by the Joint Judiciary Committee of the Legislature. Section 2 of the bill, which made the possession of any book or picture advocating a change in government the prima facie evidence of anarchy, was stricken out by the committee.

The committee also voted to report adversely on former Attorney-General Herbert Parker's bill, which would allow the attorney-general to employ a force of private police and investigators who would make their reports to the prosecuting law officer and would be pledged to secrecy. This bill had been denounced as "the Siberian spy bill."

The anti-anarchy bill now provides in substance that:

Any person who by speech or the written word or by pictorial representation shall "advocate, advise, counsel or incite unlawful assault," upon any public official or who counsels the refusal to obey the law may be sent to prison for three years and fined $1,000.

U. S. HAS CHECKS FOR SOLDIERS' RELATIVES

Army Asks Correct Next of Kin Addresses of Bay State's Dead Soldiers

The Boston American has received from Washington lists of names of men for whom checks are held, either in the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, Zone Finance Officer, or the Auditor of the Army. The "present" correct address of these men is required to enable the respective bureaus to complete payments of allotments.

In order to obtain the money due a deceased soldier, or partial payments on Liberty Bonds of a deceased soldier, application is made to J. L. Hedley, auditor for the War Department, Washington, D. C. If an administrator or an executor of the deceased soldier's estate does not file claim, the following is the order of precedence of heirs:

1. Widow.
2. Children.
3. Parents, jointly. Unless father has abandoned support of family which must be approved by two affidavits of two disinterested persons.
4. Surviving parent, if father or mother be deceased.
5. Brothers and sisters, jointly.
6. Nephews and nieces, jointly.

In making the request, the applicant should apply to the Auditor of the War Department for the proper blanks. If bonds have been paid for the same hardship obtains, and the bonds are obtained from the Director of Finance, War Department, Washington, D. C.

The following next of kin list is from Massachusetts only:

Daniel T. Gilfling, ward 9, City Hospital, mother, Jennie Hurley. Harry G. Gilfling, 468 Motor Truck.

Mrs. Rose Emanuelier, 239 Greenwood street, Boston, remitter. James Emanuelier, private, Company B, 302d Infantry.

Petition to the Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy to send Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Home with Six Months' Pay

Sign this petition, get your friends to sign it, and forward it to the Boston American, 80 Summer st., Boston, Mass.

To the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War:
To the Honorable Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy:

The undersigned respectfully urge you to return to their homes as soon as possible the soldiers, sailors and marines who have accomplished so brilliantly every object America had in the war.

We urge, also, that you obtain the necessary authority to pay these men their military wages for six months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can obtain useful and remunerative employment.

We urge this as an act of simple justice by a great nation to its heroes.

Bert Ford's Tales of the Y. D.

In Chapter XXIX. of his "Tales of the Y. D." today, Mr. Ford tells of the splendid work done by the army chaplains in the American Expeditionary Forces, in general, and by the "padres" of the Yankee Division in particular. He says:

"The sky-pilots of the American Expeditionary Forces made good with a vengeance. They were two-fisted, courageous, practical, every-day men.

"The less outward sanctity they wore and the more commonplace their methods, the better the doughboys liked them. I met padres for whom the men would have sacrificed their lives—officers and privates idolized them. They could do more with a glance or a few off-hand words than some men could if they preached all day."

And Mr. Ford adds:

"Religion became a sort of sixth sense in war, as necessary as a man's sleep, or food or rifle."

By BERT FORD.
CHAPTER XXIX.

Copyright, 1919, by the Boston American.

Welfare workers who attempted to serve religion with sweet chocolate and to exploit pet spiritual hobbies, received a cold shoulder from the rank and file of American soldiers on the Western front.

The soldiers preferred to accept religion from the army chaplains, who did not require aid from outsiders. The "sky pilots" of the A. E. F. made good with a vengeance. They were two-fisted, courageous, practical, every-day men.

The less outward sanctity they wore and the more commonplace their methods, the better the doughboys liked them. I met padres, many of them, for whom the men would have gladly sacrificed their lives—earnest, liberal, mild-mannered men of every denomination.

IDOLIZED BY MEN.

It was astonishing the influence these good men had on the organizations to which they were attached. Officers and privates fairly idolized them. They could do more with a glance or a few off-hand words than some men could if they preached all day. The game of war changed chaplains as it did the soldiers.

I recall a young divine of very exalted manner who came from a fashionable parish and who spoke with a broad English accent, always with hands folded, and who was awfully shell-shy for a spell. The men guyed him behind his back and it looked as if he were going to be a failure, but war transformed "Morli" as the soldiers christened him, and it was not long before they had taken him into their hearts as "a regular guy." That young dandy turned out to be one of the bravest men in the outfit and nobody was more surprised than himself. He told us so.

A SIXTH SENSE.

I knew chaplains who did not hesitate to say "hell" and "damn," after they had been in the field for a time and the soldiers liked it.

"The religious element is different in the army than it is in civil life and it was radically different in time of war than it is in time of peace. Judging from my observations along the front, religion became a sort of sixth sense, in war. It seemed to become as necessary as sleep, and food and rifle. It seemed as natural and necessary as air to the great majority. It was interesting to see how religion got under the skin of many of the calloused and the unbelievers in the face of danger and death.

Men just felt it. A rough-neck sergeant expressed it pretty accurately when he bawled:

"Nobody has to spout religion to me when it's time to go over the top. Prayer is second nature and you don't have to get down on your knees. All that you learned about religion in childhood comes rushing back to you and it gets you good."

The army chaplains sized it up about that way. They used effective logic. They did worlds of good.

MADE CONGREGATION GASP.

Chaplain Lyman Rollins of Marblehead, attached to the 101st Infantry, injected a sort of Billy Sunday pep to his talks. He talked from the shoulder in everyday slang and trench lingo and always made a hit. On a certain Sabbath, Chaplain Rollins made his soldier congregation gasp.

Without a word of preface or the slightest warning, he thundered forth a string of oaths and obscene phrases, every one that he had ever heard, and then suddenly stopped.

The men thought he had gone crazy. Then before they had recovered from their astonishment Chaplain Rollins shouted:

"How did it sound, fellows? Pretty bad coming from a minister, didn't it? Well let me tell you it doesn't sound any worse for me to utter those vile words than it does for you. All I hear from Monday to Monday is profanity. Cut it out fellows."

He told me he didn't hear a profane word for days after that blast. Chaplain Rollins was a live wire, and yet he had literally to fight his way across. He applied to go with the regiment but his application was turned down and he had to hurry to Washington and pull no end of wires. The Rev. M. J. O'Connor of Roxbury, then ranking chaplain of the 101st Infantry and later senior divisional chaplain, helped make a berth for Chaplain Rollins and they were inseparable.

Father O'Connor directed all the chaplains in the Yankee Division. He is such a big, forcible, good-natured padre, an athlete and football player in college, that the soldiers looked up to him. Chaplain O'Connor was gassed, but recovered.

SHARED RISKS WITH MEN.

I don't think there was a chaplain in the American overseas army who roughed it more with the men in the front lines and who came nearer sharing their hardships and risks than the Rev. Osias J. Boucher, a Knights of Columbus chaplain from Fall River. Father Boucher said at the home-coming banquet given to Colonel Logan by the representative citizens of Boston at the Copley-Plaza that he was probably the "toughest looking chaplain in France," because he wore a regulation doughboy's "uniform and never had time to "slick up."

But Chaplain Boucher did not mention the countless acts of bravery he performed under machine gun and shell fire to administer to dying soldiers. He, like Chaplain Rollins, won a Croix de Guerre.

The first chaplains in the A. E. F. decorated by the French were the Rev. John R. De Valis of New Bedford and the late Rev. Walter S. Danker of Worcester, who was killed by a shell.

Father De Valis at the Apremont Woods and Belchamp fights, rescued several wounded soldiers who were trapped in No Man's Land. He is as handsome as a motion picture hero. He is curate of St. John the Baptist Church. He was assigned to the army by the Knights of Columbus.

YOUNGSTERS FEARLESS.

After the Apremont Woods scrap he told me how he felt the first time he was under fire. He said:

"First you recoil and get scared blue and then you forget all about yourself when you see men dead and wounded around you. It was hell. That's the only name for it while the shelling was at its height. There was a time in my life when I feared to stay alone in a room during a thunder storm.

"If anybody told me then I could face and survive what I went through today I wouldn't have believed him. The noise was maddening. Shells dropped everywhere, hurling earth and stones and shrapnel. There were flashes and thunderous reports.

"All the glory goes to the men in the ranks. That's where you find the real heroes. Those youngsters are wonders. Boys of eighteen fought like the warriors we read about. They didn't seem to have a thought of fear. They just pitched in. There isn't a power in the world that can conquer such spirit. It was great. The fortitude of those striplings was the marvel of it all.

LIEUT. GALVIN KILLED.

"I was at a dressing station when Lieutenant John Galvin of Greenfield came there for treatment. He had been fighting gallantly all day. He told the surgeon there was something the matter with his eardrums. He said he couldn't hear and that it interfered with his work.

"The doctor told him to bathe his ears in hot water. Lieutenant Galvin smiled and said, 'Hot water! Can't even get cold.' I shook hands with him and he hadn't gone many steps before a shell killed him. Poor lad. His men worshipped him. Galvin was a regular fellow and a fine soldier.

"As the battle progressed I had to do a little first aid work of my own, administering to the wounded and annointing the dying. There were no denominational lines out there. The spiritual feeling was strong. Youngsters begged me to pray for them.

"Word reached me that Private Charlie Pike of Peabody was wounded and unable to move in No Man's Land. I went out and poked around but couldn't locate him. I came back for more definite directions and found him the second time and hauled him in. Most ordinary thing in the world, but some of them thought it good enough for a medal. Anybody would have done it.

RELIEF IN CIGARETTE.

"I carried a thermos bottle filled with hot tea and I gave them a drink from it the first thing and that spruced them up, and then, as they started off in stretchers, I poked a cigarette between their lips, and the cigarette always brought such an expression of relief and satisfaction.

"Then I would whisper a prayer and a word of cheer in their ear and send them down the trail to the hospital. The first thing that many of the wounded youngsters asked was how soon they could return to the line. The flashes and rockets reminded you of the Fourth of July. In spite of the dampness trees caught fire."

The bravery of army chaplains was one of the features of the opening fights of Apremont Woods and Belchamp. The Rev. William P. Farrell of West Newton administered to the dying during a rain of shells and carried ammunition to a battery by hand. When four men were killed and seven wounded putting the guns out of action, Chaplain Farrell operated a gun himself until wounded by shrapnel.

Chaplain Farrell carried Private Myron Dickinson of Bridgeport, Ct., a nineteen-year-old artilleryman, on his back to a dressing station. He was cited for bravery. The commanding officer told Chaplain Farrell that he was too good a fighter for a clergyman and offered him a commission, but Father Farrell thought he'd better continue the role of sky pilot. The men called him "The Fighting Parson."

DID SPLENDID WORK.

The Rev. George S. L. Cosnor of Holyoke did splendid work with the Yankee Division and later became senior corps chaplain with the American Army of Occupation. Chaplain Connor was fortunate enough to be transferred back in time to come home with the Yankee Division. He was attached to the 101st Infantry when mustered out. He officiated at the funeral of Sheldon Dewitt of Holyoke, his classmate and chum, who was the last chaplain and probably the last American officer to be killed in the war.

The Rev. John J. Milly of New York, chaplain of the 102d Infantry, was thrown from his horse in the parade and suffered a broken ankle. His mount was frightened by noise and confetti in passing the Hotel Lenox. Other chaplains of the Yankee Division, everyone of whom was a hustler and deserves special mention, were: The Rev. Burnham Dell, the Rev. Thomas G. Speers and the Rev. James P. Sherry, the latter from Boston, 102d Infantry, the Rev. Harrison Anderson, Albert E. Hatzer and the Rev. Michael Cleary, the latter assigned by the Knights of Columbus with Infantry. The Rev. John H. De Valle of New Bedford, one of the first chaplains in the A. E. F. to receive a Croix de Guerre for gallantry in saving wounded under fire; the Rev. Charles K. Imbrie and the Rev. Alton Evans, Jr., 101st Artillery, the Rev. Murray Dewart, 102d Artillery, the Rev. Malcolm H. Peabody, Groton, 103d Artillery, the Rev. William H. Farrell of Boston, 101st Ammunition Train, the Rev. Chauncy Adams, 101st Engineers, the Rev. Henry H. D'Wardis, the Rev. L. G. Libert (R. C.) of the Military Police and Supply Train, the Rev. Thomas F. Temple, New York, 101st Machine Gun Battalion, the Rev. Earl Taggart, 103d Machine Gun Battalion, the Rev. O. J. La Ver, 103d Machine Gun Battalion, the Rev. Robert Chandler, 101st Signal Battalion, the Rev. John Creighton, Division Headquarters, the Rev. Father Tucker, Rabbi Israel Bettan, South Carolina, and Acting Rabbi Benjamin Nieman of Boston.

Who's Who in the 26th Division

Major Frederick L. Bogan, son of the late Colonel Frederick B. Bogan, who commanded the 9th Massachusetts Infantry in the Spanish-American War and died two days after his return from Cuba in 1898, was born in Charlestown, Mass. He was educated in the Boston public schools.

For fifteen years he served in the medical department National Guard of Massachusetts, starting his career as a private. He served with the 9th Massachusetts, National Guard, as regimental surgeon at the Mexican border during the 1916 fracas. He went overseas September 6, 1917, as surgeon of the 101st United States Infantry and was tranferred to do special work with the 101st Field Signal Battalion on January 15, 1918.

On April 11, 1918, he was transferred to the 102d Field Hospital, 26th Division, as commanding officer and on February 6, 1919, was promoted to director of Field Hospitals, 26th Division. He was honorably discharged from service April 28, 1919. At the time of being called into service to go overseas he was a member of the Boston School Committee, retiring at the completion of his term in February, 1919.

While in France he attended the Army Sanitary School at Langre, graduating with high honors. Later he was a lecturer at the same school on the Medical Aspect of the Second Battle of the Marne. Upon his return to the United States from France, Major Bogan saw his sixteen-months-old son, Frederick Jr., for the first time. Major Bogan is a leading ear, nose and throat specialist in Boston.

Women's $35 TABLIER SUITS

Filene's

$35 is the price most women want to pay for a suit.

The women's shop has many styles of suits at $35 in addition to the one sketched. Let us look at that one closely, since we cannot look at them all.

The suit sketched is one of those happy styles that can be worn without a blouse as well as with. The ribbon vest makes it a complete costume in itself. The heavy embroidery is black braid, with here and there a bit of tan. Sizes 34 to 44. $35.

Other $35 suits include other serges, and also new silk suits in sizes 34 to 50.

Filene's—mail orders filled—fifth floor

FILENE VALUES speak for themselves. For instance, women's heavily embroidered serge suits, with goldbrocade tabbie vests, at $35—sketched.

Women's Baronet satin skirts of the original, beautiful quality, $10.75 Fifth floor

Children's play shoes with guaranteed soles, $2 Third floor

WIFE, HELD FOR BIGAMY, IS SUED

Divorce Plea Charges Cruelty and Abuse—Grand Jury Report Awaited

Portland, Me., May 7.—John A. Pinkham of this city, recently of Richmond, has filed divorce proceedings against Carrie Pinkham who, on April 21 last, was held for the grand jury on a charge of bigamy.

When arraigned in the lower court, Mrs. Pinkham, who was charged with marrying Fred C. Doyle at Westbrook, January 20, less than two years after her marriage to Pinkham, pleaded not guilty. The Grand Jury, which considers her case, probably will report the latter part of the week.

Pinkham, who married the woman March 13, 1917, alleges infidelity, extreme cruelty and cruel and abusive treatment, and asks the custody of a minor child.

UKRAINIAN GIRL SEEKS BROTHERS HERE

The Boston police have received a communication from a Russian girl in Germany asking assistance in locating her two brothers who, she believes, are residents of Boston. She says she has not heard from them since before the war. She signs her name Rael Sanzier and asserts she is a Russian Ukrainian and gives her address as Siegburg, Province of the Rhine, Germany.

Says Wife Is a Movie Addict, But Wants Her Back Again

Pittsfield, May 7.—Testifying that he still loved his wife, Mrs. Bertha Ross Andrews of Great Barrington, and that he wanted to reclaim and live with her, Joseph H. Andrews of Pittsfield is contesting a suit for divorce in the Berkshire Superior Court.

Mrs. Andrews' suit charges cruel and abusive treatment and failure to provide. She alleged her husband had threatened to cut her throat with a razor and that she had suffered from other cruel acts.

The libelee claimed his wife was a movie addict and had lived with her mother about half the time since their marriage. The court reserved decision in the case.

CALLS ON WOMEN TO AID FRENCH VICTIMS

In response to a call from the French government for clothing and comforts for women and children of the devastated Aisne section north of Chateau Thierry, the American Committee for Devastated France, through its executive chairman, Mrs. James G. Mumford, sends out an appeal to the women of New England to sew, to knit, and to give to the committee.

"We wish to put the need before all groups of women in New England," says Mrs. Mumford, "with the hope that notwithstanding the four long years they have met with such constancy the demands of this terrible war, they will still be willing to serve. The French government has asked us to provide clothes for 121 villages. Will those who are willing to help come or send to the New England Headquarters at No. 415 Boylston street, for further details?"

A sign that a Regiment cheered

Just a painted sign on the wall of an ancient building in France! "Not much of a thrill in that," you'll say

YET a regiment of American soldiers, dog-weary from a long hike, dripping wet from an all-day downpour, broke into cheers at sight of it You'd have thought they had come unexpectedly on a Statue of Liberty in Brest

That sign represented "God's country"—a glimpse of home that had gone across the sea to meet them

When we placed our signs in the prominent locations in Brest, Bordeaux, St. Nazaire, Nantes, and the other ports of embarkation in France, we hoped they'd be more than merely messages that let the boys know they'd find our clothes—stylish, all wool, guaranteed—ready for them when they got home

We are glad they feel as they do about it If those signs of ours over there give our boys a little glimpse of "back home" that cheers, we're more than repaid—even if that is the one and only thing those signs do

ONCE MIGHTY TEUTONIC NATION HUMBLED BY TERMS OF PEACE

GENERATIONS OF GERMANS TO PAY WAR'S TERRIBLE TOLL

Germany accepts full responsibility for all damages caused to allied and association governments and nationals, agrees specifically to reimburse all civilian damages, beginning with an initial payment of twenty billion marks, subsequent payments to be secured by bonds to be issued at the discretion of the reparation commission. Germany is to pay shipping damage on a ton-for-ton basis by cession of a large part of her merchant, coasting and river fleets and by new construction. And to devote her economic resources to the rebuilding of the devastated regions.

She agrees to return to the 1914 most-favored-nation tariffs, without discrimination of any sort; to allow allied and associated nationals freedom of transit through her territories, and to accept highly detailed provisions as to pre-war debts, unfair competition, internationalization of roads and rivers and other economic and financial clauses. She also agrees to the trial of the ex-Kaiser by an international high court for a supreme offence against international morality and of other nationals for violation of the laws and customs of war, Holland to be asked to extradite the former and Germany being responsible for delivering the latter.

The League of Nations is accepted by the allied and associated powers as operative and by Germany in principle, but without membership. Similarly an international labor body is brought into being, with a permanent office and an annual convention.

A great number of international bodies of different kinds and for different purposes are created, some under the League of Nations, some to execute the peace treaty. Among the former is the commission to govern the Saar basin till a plebiscite is held fifteen years, thence high commissioner of Danzig, which is created into a free city under the league, and various commissions for plebiscites in Malmudy, Schleswig and East Prussia. Among those to carry out the peace treaty are the reparations, military, naval, air, financial and economic commissions, the international high court and military tribunals to fix responsibilities and a series of bodies for the control of international rivers.

Certain problems are left for solution between the allied and associated powers, notably details of the disposition of the German fleet and cables, the former German colonies, and the values paid in reparation. Certain other problems, such as the laws of the air and opium, arms and liquor traffic, are either agreed to in detail or set for early international action.

Drastic Terms Imposed on Vanquished Foe by Allies

Preamble. The preamble names as parties of the one part the United States, the British empire, France, Italy, and Japan, described as the five allied or associated powers, and Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, China, Cuba, Ecuador, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, The Hedjaz, Honduras, Liberia, Nicaragua, Panama, Peru, Portugal, Rumania, Serbia, Siam, Tzecho-Slovakia, and Uruguay, who with the five above are described as the allied and associated powers, and on the other part, Germany.

It states that: Bearing in mind that on the request of the then—Imperial German government—an armistice was granted on November 11th, 1918, by the five allied and associated powers in order that a treaty of peace might be concluded with her, and whereas the allied and associated powers being equally desirous that the war in which directly or indirectly, and which originated in the declaration of war by Austria-Hungary on July 28th, 1914, against Serbia, the declaration of war by Germany against Russia on August 1, 1914, and against France on August 3, 1914, and in the invasion of Belgium, should be replaced by a firm, just, and durable peace, the plenipotentiaries (having communicated their full powers found in good and due form have agreed as follows):

STATE OF WAR TERMINATES AS TREATY GOES INTO EFFECT

From the coming into force of the present treaty the state of war will terminate. From the moment and subject to the provisions of this treaty official relations with Germany and with each of the German States will be resumed by the allied and associated powers.

Section one. League of Nations. The covenant of the League of Nations constitutes section one of the peace treaty, which places upon the league many specific, in addition to its general duties.

It may question Germany at any time for a violation of the neutralized zone east of the Rhine as a threat against the world's peace.

It will appoint three of the five members of the Saar commission, oversee its regime and carry out the plebescite. It will appoint the high commissioner of Danzig, guarantee the independence of the free city and arrange for treaties between Danzig and Germany and Poland. It will work out the mandatory system to be applied to the former German colonies, and act as a final court in part of the plebescites of the Belgian-German frontier and in disputes as to the Kiel Canal, and decide certain of the economic and financial problems.

An international conference on labor is to be held in October under its direction and another on the international control of ports, waterways and railways is foreseen.

Membership. The members of the league will be the signatories of the covenant and other states invited to accede who must lodge a declaration of accession without reservation within two months.

A new state, dominion or colony may be admitted provided its admission is agreed to by two-thirds of the assembly. A state may withdraw upon giving two years' notice, if it has fulfilled all its international obligations.

Section 2.

Secretariat.

A permanent secretariat will be established at the seat of the league, which will be at Geneva.

Assembly.

The assembly will consist of representatives of the members of the league, and will meet at stated intervals. Voting will be by states. Each member will have one vote, and not more than three representatives.

Council.

The council will consist of representatives of four members selected by the assembly from time to time; it may co-operate with additional States and will meet at least once a year. Members not represented will be invited to send a representative when questions affecting their interests are discussed. Voting will be by States. Each State will have one vote and not more than one representative. Decision taken by the assembly and council must be unanimous in regard to procedure and in certain cases specified in the covenant and in the treaty where decisions will be by a majority.

REVISE ARMAMENT PLANS EVERY TEN YEARS

Armaments—The council will formulate plans for a reduction of armaments for consideration and adoption. These plans will be revised every ten years. If a member fails to carry out the award, the council will propose necessary measures. The council will formulate plans for the establishment of a permanent court of international justice to determine international disputes or to give advisory opinions. Members who do not submit their case to arbitration must accept the jurisdiction of the assembly. If the council, less the parties to the dispute, is unanimously agreed upon the rights of it, the members agree that they will not go to war with any party to the dispute which complies with its recommendations. In case a recommendation by the assembly is adopted, no member must exceed the armaments fixed without the concurrence of the council. All members will exchange full information as to armaments and programs, and a permanent committee will advise the council on military and naval questions.

PROVISIONS AGAINST RECURRENCE OF WAR

Preventing of war.

Upon any war, or threat of war, the council will meet to consider what common action shall be taken. Members are pledged to submit matters of dispute to arbitration or inquiry and not to resort to war until three months after the award.

Members agree to carry out an arbitral award, and not to go to war unless concurred in by all its members represented on the council, and a simple majority of the rest, less the parties to the dispute will have the force of a unanimous recommendation by the council. In either case, if the necessary agreement cannot be secured, the members reserve the right to take such action as may be necessary for the maintenance of right and justice.

Members resorting to war in disregard of the covenant will immediately be debarred from all intercourse with other members. The council will in such cases consider what military or naval action can be taken by the league collectively for the protection of the covenant and will afford facilities to members co-operating in this enterprise.

RELATIVE TO VALIDITY OF ALL TREATIES.

Validity of the treaties.

All treaties or international engagements concluded after the institution of the league will be registered with the secretariat and published. The assembly may from time to time advise members to reconsider treaties which have become inapplicable or involve danger of peace. The covenant abrogates all obligations between members inconsistent with its terms, but nothing in it shall affect the validity of international engagement such as treaties of arbitration or regional understandings like the Monroe doctrine for securing the maintenance of peace.

The mandatory system.

The tutelage of nations not yet able to stand by themselves will be entrusted to advanced nations who are best fitted to undertake it. The covenant covenant recognizes the different stages of development requiring different kinds of mandatories. (Communities like those belonging to the Turkish empire which can be provisionally recognized as independent, subject to advice and assistance from a mandatory in whose selection they would beallowed a voice.) (Communities like thothose of Central Africa, to be administered by the mandatory under conditions generally approved by the members of the league where equal opportunities for trade will be allowed to all members; certain abuses, such as trade in slaves, arms and liquor will be prohibited, and the construction of military and naval bases and the introduction of compulsory military training will be disallowed. Other communities, such as Southwest Africa and the South Pacific Islands, but administered under the laws of the mandatory as integral portion of its territory. In every case the mandatory will render an annual repot, and rthe degree of its authority will be defined.

FAIR CONDITIONS FOR WORLD LABOR.

General international provisions:

Subject to and in accordance with the provisions of international convention existing or hereafter to be agreed upon, the members of the league will in general endeavor, through the international organization established by the labor convention, to secure and maintain fair conditions of labor for men, women and children in their own countries and other countries, and undertake to secure just treatment of the native inhabitants of territory under their control; they will entrust the league with the general supervision over the execution of agreements for the suppression of traffic in women and children, and the control of the trade in arms and ammunition with countries in which control is necessary; they will make provision for freedom of communications and transit and equitable treatment for commerce of all members of the league, with special reference to the necessities of regions devasted during the war; and they will endeavor to take steps for international prevention and control of disease.

THE NEW BOUNDARY LINE FOR GERMANY

International bureaus and commissions already established will be placed under the league, as well as those to be established in the future.

Amendments to the covenant.

Amendments to the covenant will take effect when ratified by the council and by a majority of the assembly.

Section two. Boundaries of Germany. Germany cedes to France Alsace-Lorraine, five thousand six hundred square miles, and to Belgium, two small districts between Luxemburg and Holland, totalling nine hundred and eighty-six square miles. She also cedes to Poland the southeastern tip of Silesia beyond and including Oppeln, most of Posen, and West Prussia, twenty-seven thousand six hundred and eighty square miles. The Danzig area consists of the V between the Nogat and Vistula rivers, made A W by the addition of a similar V on the west including the city of Danzig. The southeastern third of East Prussia and the area between East Prussia and the Vistula north of latitude fifty-three degrees, three minutes, is to have its nationality determined by popular vote, five thousand, seven hundred and eighty-five square miles, as is to be the case in part of Sleswig, two thousand, seven hundred and eighty-seven square miles.

Section 2.

Belgium—Germany is to consent to the abrogation of the treaties of 1839 by which Belgium was established as a neutral state, and to agree in advance to any convention with which the allied and associated powers may determine to replace them. She is to recognize the full sovereignty of Belgium over the contested territory of Moresnet and over parts of Prussian Moresnet, and to renounce in favor of Belgium all rights over the circles of Eupen and Malmedy, the inhabitants of which are to be entitled within six months to protest against this change of sovereignty either in whole of in part, the final decision to be reserved to the League of Nations. A commission is to settle the details of the frontier, and various regulations for change of nationality are laid down.

Luxemburg — Germany renounces her various treaties and conventions with the part of the German Zollverein from January last, renounces all right of exploitation of the railroads, adheres to the abrogation of its neutrality, and accepts in advance any international agreement as to it, reached by the allied and associated powers.

FORTIFICATIONS ON LEFT BANK OF RHINE.

Left bank of the Rhine as provided in the military clauses, Germany will not maintain any fortifications or armed forces less than fifty kilometers to the east of the Rhine, hold manoeuvres, nor maintain any works to facilitate mobilization. In case of violation, "she shall be regarded as committing a hostile act against the powers who sign the present treaty, and as intending to disturb the peace of the world.

"By virtue of the present treaty, Germany shall be bound to respond to any request for an explanation which the council of the League of Nations may think it necessary to address to her."

Alsace-Lorraine—After recognition of the moral obligation to repair the wrong done in 1871 by Germany to France and the people of Alsace-Lorraine, the territories ceded to Germany by the Treaty of Frankfort are restored to France with their frontiers as before 1871, to date from the signing of the armistice, and to be free of all public debts.

Citizenship is regulated by detailed provisions distinguishing those who are immediately restored to full French citizenship, those who have to make formal application therefor, and those for whom naturalization is open after three years. The last-named class includes German residents in Alsace-Lorraine, as distinguished from those who acquire the position of Alsace-Lorrainers as defined in the treaty. All public property and all private property of German ex-sovereigns passes to the French without payment or credit. France is substituted for Germany as regards ownership of the railroads and rights over concessions of tramways. The Rhine bridges pass to France, with the obligation for their upkeep.

DUTY OFF PRODUCTS OF ALSACE LORRAINE.

For five years manufactured products of Alsace Lorraine will be admitted to Germany free of duty to a total amount not exceeding in any year the average of the three years preceding the war and textile materials may be imported from Germany to Alsace Lorraine and re-exported free of duty. Contracts for electric power from the right bank must be continued for ten years.

For seven years with possible extension to ten, the ports of Kehae and Strassbourg shall be administered as a single unit by a French administrator appointed and supervised by the Central Rhine Commission. Property rights will be safeguarded in both ports and equality of treatment as respects traffic assured the nations, vessels and goods of every country.

Contracts between Alsace-Lorrainers and Germans are maintained valid for France's right to annul on grounds of public interest judgments of courts held in certain classes of cases, while in others a judicial exequature is first required. Political condemnation during the war are null and void and the obligation to pay war fines is established as in other parts of allied territory.

Various clauses adjust the general provisions of the treaty to the special conditions of Alsace Lorraine, certain matters of execution being left to conventions to be made between France and Germany.

The Saar—In compensation for the destruction of coal mines in northern France and as payment on account of reparation, Germany cedes to France full ownership of the coal mines of the Saar Basin with their subsidiaries, accessories and facilities. Their value will be estimated by the reparation commission and credited against that account. The French rights will be governed by German law in force at the armistice, excepting war legislation. France replacing the present owners whom Germany undertakes to indemnify.

COMMISSION OF FIVE TO GOVERN TERRITORY.

France will continue to furnish the present proportion of coal for local needs and contribute in just proportion to local taxes. The basin extends from the frontier of Lorraine as reannexed to France north as far as Stwendel, including on the west the Valley of the Saar as far as Saarbrinlaach, and on the east the town of Homburg.

In order to secure the rights and welfare of the population and guarantee to France entire freedom in working the mines, the territory will be governed by a commission appointed by the League of Nations and consisting of five members, one French, one a native inhabitant of the Saar, and three representing three different countries other than France and Germany. The league will appoint a member of the commission as chairman to act as executive of the commission.

The commission will have all powers of government formerly belonging to the German empire, Prussia and Bavaria will administer the railroads and other public services and have full power to interpret the treaty clauses. The local courts will continue, but subject to the commission.

Existing German legislation will remain the basis of the law, but the commission may make modification after consulting a local representative assembly which it will organize. It will have the taxing power, but for local purposes only. New taxes must be approved by this assembly.

Labor legislation will consider the wishes of the local labor organizations and the labor program of the league. French and other labor may be freely utilized, the former being free to belong to French nuions.

All rights acquired as to pensions and social insurance will be maintained by Germany and the Saar commission. There will be no military service but only a local gendarmerie to preserve order. The people will preserve their local assemblies, religious liberties, schools and language, but may vote only for local assemblies. They will keep their present nationality except as far as individuals may change it. Those wishing to leave will have every facility with respect to their property. The territory will form part of the French customs system with no export tax on coal and metallurgical products going to Germany and no German duties on products the basin going to Germany or German products coming into the basin for local consumption.

PLEBISCITE WILL BE HELD AFTER 15 YEARS.

French money may circulte without restriction.

After fifteen years a plebiscite will be held by the communes to ascertain the desires of the population as to continuances of the existing regime under the League of Nations union with France or union with Germany. The right to vote will belong to all inhabitants over twenty resident therein.

Taking into account the opinions thus expressed, the League will decide the ultimate sovereignty in any portion restored to Germany. The German government must buy out the French mines at an appraised valuation. If the price is not paid within six months thereafter, this portion passes finally to France. If Germany buys back the mines the League will determine how much of the coal shall be annuall sold to France.

Section 4.

German Austria. Germany recognises the total independence of German Austria in the boundaries traced.

Tchecho-Slovakia. Germany recognizes the entire independence of the Tchecho-Slovak State, including the autonoeemous territory of the Ruthenians south of the Carpathians, and accepts the frontiers of this State as to be determined, which in the case of the German frontier shall follow the frontier of Bohemia in 1914. The usual stipulations as to acquisition and change of nationality follow.

POSEN AND WEST PRUSSIA ARE CEDED TO POLAND

Poland. Germany cedes to Poland the greater part of upper Silesia, Posen and the provinces of West Prussia on the left bank of the vistula. A field boundary commission of seven, five representing the allied and associated powers and one each representing Poland and Germany, shall be constituted within fifteen days of the peace, to fix the limits of this boundary. Such special provisions as are necessary to protect racial, linguistic or religious minorities, and to protect freedom of transit and equitable treatment of commerce of other nations, shall be laid down in a subsequent treaty between the five allied and associated powers and Poland.

East Prussia—The southern and the eastern frontier of East Prussia, assuring (word obscure) Poland is to be fixed by plebiscites, the first in the regency of Allenstein between the southern frontier of East Prussia and the northern frontier of Regierungsbezirk Allenstein from where it meets the boundary between East and West Prussia to its junction with the boundary between the circles of Aletsko and Augersburg, thence the northern boundary of Oletsko to its junction with the present frontier, and the second in the area comprising the circles of Stuhm and Rosenburg and the parts of the circles of Marienburg and Marienwarder east of the Vistula.

In each case German troops and authorities will move out within fifteen days of the peace, and the territories be placed under an international commission of five members appointed by the five allied and associated powers, with the particular duty of arranging for a free, fair and secret vote. The commission will report the results of the plebiscites to the five powers with a recommendation for the boundary, and will terminate its work as soon as the boundary has been laid down and the new authorities set up.

EAST PRUSSIA WILL GET FREE ACCESS TO VISTULA.

The five allied and associated powers will draw up regulations assuring East Prussia full and equitable access to and use of the Vistulk. A subsequent convention, of which the terms will be fixed by the five allied and associated powers, will be entered into between Poland, Germany and Danzig, to assure suitable railroad communication across German territory on the right bank of the Vistula between Poland and Danzig, while Poland shall grant free passage from east Prussia to Germany.

The northeastern corner of East Prussia about Memel is to be ceded by Germany to the associated powers, the former agreeing to accept the settlement made, especially as regards the nationality of the inhabitants.

Danzig — Danzig and the district immediately about it is to be constituted into the "free city of Danzig," under the guarantee of the League of Nations. A high commissioner appointed by the league and president at Danzig shall draw up a constitution in agreement with the duly-appointed representatives of the city and shall deal in the first instance with all differences arising between the city and Poland. The actual boundaries of the city shall be delimited by a commission appointed within six months from the peace and to include three representatives chosen by the allied and associated powers, and one each by Germany and Poland.

A convention, the terms of which shall be fixed by the five allied and associated powers, shall be concluded between Poland and Danzig which shall include Danzig within the Polish customs frontiers, though a free area in the port; insure to Poland the free use of all the city's waterways, docks and other port facilities, the control and administration of the Vistula and the whole through railway system within the city, and postal, telegraphic and telephonic communication between Poland and Danzig; provide against discrimination against Poles within the city and place its foreign relations and the diplomatic protection of its citizens abroad in charge of Poland.

ARMY AND NAVY ARE NEARLY DISBANDED, FORTS RAZED

POPULATION TO DETERMINE GERMANY DENMARK FRONTIERS.

Denmark — The frontier between Germany and Deamark will be fixed by the self-determination of the population. Ten days from the peace, German troops and authorities shall evacuate the region north of the line running from the south of the Schlei, south of Kappeln, Schleswig and Friedrichstadt along the Elder to the North sea south of Tonning, the workmen's and soldiers' councils shall be dissolved, and the territory administered by an international commission of five, of whom Norway and Sweden shall be invited to name two.

The commission shall insure a free and secret vote in three zones. That between the German-Danish frontier and a line running south of the island of Aisen, north of Sonderburg and south of Tondern to the North Sea, north of the island of Sylt will vote as a unit within three weeks after the evacuation. Within five weeks after this vote the second zone, whose southern boundary runs from the North Sea south of the island of Fehr to the Baltic south of Sygum, will vote by communes. Two weeks after that vote the third zone, running to the limit of evacuation, will also vote by communes. The international commission will then draw a new frontier on the bsis of these plebescites and with due regard for geographical and economic conditions. Germany will renounce all sovereignty over territories north of her frontier in favor of the associated governments, who will hand them over to Denmark.

GERMANY MUST DESTROY HELIGOLAND FORTIFICATIONS.

Heligoland—The fortifications, military establishments and harbors of the island of Heligoland and Dune are to be destroyed under the supervision of the allies by German labor and at Germany's expense. They may not be reconstructed, nor any similar fortifications built in the future.

Russias—Germany agrees to respect as permanent and inalienable the independence of territories which were part of the former Russian Empire, to accept the abrogation of the Brest-Litovak and other treaties entered into with the Bolshmalist government of Russia, to recognize the full force of all treaties entered into by the allied and associated powers with states which were a part of the former Russian Empire, and to recognize the frontiers as determined thereon. The allied and associated powers formally reserve the right of Russia to obtain restitution and reparation of the principles of the present treaty.

Section 5.

German rights outside Europe. Outside Europe Germany renounces all rights, titles and privileges as to her or her allies' territories to all the allied and associated powers and undertakes to accept whatever measures are taken by the five allied powers in relation thereto.

GERMAN COLONIES TRANSFERRED TO ALLIES.

Colonies and overseas possessions. Germany renounces in favor of the allied and associated powers her overseas possessions with all rights and titles therein. All movable and immovable property belonging to the German Empire or to any German State shall pass to the government exercising authority therein. These governments may make whatever provisions seem suitable for the repatriation of German nationals and as to the conditions of which German subjects of European origin shall reside, hold property, or carry on business.

Germany undertakes to pay for damage suffered by French nationals in the Cameroons, through the acts of German civilian and military authorities and of individual Germans from January, 1900, to August 1, 1914. Germany renounces all rights under the conventions of November 4, 1911, and Sept. 28, 1912, and undertakes to pay to France in accordance with an estimate presented and approved by the repatriation commission all deposits, credits, advances, etc., thereby secured.

Germany undertakes to accept and observe any provisions by the Allied and Associated Powers as to the trade in arms and spirits in Africa as well as to the General Act of Berlin of 1885 and the

Germany's army and navy forces are reduced to 115,000 men by the treaty of peace. Following is a summary of the pact:

The German army is not to exceed 70,000 infantrymen and 30,000 cavalrymen.

Conscription will be abolished.

The German fleet is to be reduced to six battleships, six cruisers, twelve destroyers and twelve torpedo boats, manned by a force of 15,000 men.

All fortifications for a distance of fifty miles east of the Rhine are to be dismantled.

The naval and army works upon Heligoland Island are to be destroyed. The Kiel canal will be "free."

Germany shall not have any air forces after September.

The allied and associated governments will publicly try the ex-Kaiser and all others guilty of war responsibility.

Germany must pay $5,000,000,000 indemnity pending a full determination of the claims against her. Alsace, Lorraine, and the Saar Valley go to France, but the League of Nations will govern the Saar Valley for a period of fifteen years after which a plebiscite will be held.

Danzig (which the Poles are demanding) will be made a free port. A plebiscite will be held in Schleswig to determine whether the people wish the province returned to Denmark.

Germany must surrender all of her colonies and territorial possessions in Morocco as well as her cables.

GERMANY RENOUNCES ALL PRIVILEGES IN CHINA

China

Germany renounces in favor of China all privileges and indemnities resulting from the Boxer protocol of 1901 and all buildings, wharves barracks munitions of warships, wireless plants and other public property except in Pekin, or consular establishments on the German concessions at Tientsin and Hankow and in other Chinese territory except Kiaochau and agrees to return to China at her own expense all the astronomical instruments seized. China will, however, leave in the positions they now occupy all instruments used for the control and navigation of aerial routes, which are necessary for the Chinese Government, without the consent of the powers signatory to the Boxer protocol.

German agrees to the cancellation of the consular courts in China and to the abandonment by Germany of her rights under any treaties, conventions, agreements or understandings between Germany and China relating to the Chinese customs service, Chinese salt taxes, the Chinese postal service, Chinese navigation of the Yangtse or the Chinese railways.

GERMANY CEDES SHANTUNG RIGHTS TO JAPAN.

Germany cedes to Japan all rights, titles and privileges, including the German state property, which she acquired in the territory of Kiaochau by the treaty with China of March 6, 1898, and by all other agreements relating to Shantung. All German state property in the territory of Kiaochau is to be transferred to Japan free of charges. A German state property includes all cables, wireless stations and submarine cables which are the property of the German state, free and clear of all charges and encumbrances.

Kiaochau is to be opened to the trade of all nations.

DEMOBILIZATION WITHIN TWO MONTHS OF PEACE.

Within two months after the coming into force of the present treaty the German military forces must be demobilized to the extent prescribed by the Allied and Associated Governments. This demobilization must be carried out in such a manner as to conform first to the principle of leaving under arms those classes which have served longest, and secondly to the principle of causing as little disturbance as possible in the industrial life of the country.

The number of German troops which will be allowed to remain under arms after demobilization is completed will be determined by the Allied and Associated Governments, but must not exceed a total of 100,000 men, including officers. Not more than seven divisions of infantry and three of cavalry are to be retained, and these units are to be allotted exclusively to the maintenance of internal order and control of frontiers. Divisions may not be grouped under more than two army corps headquarters staffs.

The great German general staff is abolished. The army administrative service, consisting of civilian personnel not included in the number of effectives, is reduced to one-tenth the total in the 1913 budget. Employees of the German states such as customs officers, first guards and coast guards, may not exceed the number in 1913. Gendarmes and local police may be increased only in accordance with the growth of population. None of these may be assembled for military training.

Armaments. All establishments for the manufacturing, preparation, storage or design of arms and munitions of war except those specifically excepted must be closed within three months of the peace and their personnel dismissed. The exact amount of armament and munitions allowed Germany is laid down in detailed tables all in excess to be surrendered or rendered useless.

The manufacture and importation of asphyxiating, poisonous or other gases and of analogous liquids is forbidden as well as the importation of arms, munitions and war material of every kind. Germany may not manufacture such materials for foreign governments.

Conscription (conscription) is abolished in Germany. The enlisted personnel of the army must be trained by voluntary enlistments for terms of twelve consecutive years.

The Captain of the Vonvina

Copyright, 1917, by Robert W. Chambers.

[illegible] captain of the Vonvina had just come from the bridge and was making a bite of late supper in his cabin when the orderly announced Nealand. He rose at once, offering a friendly hand.

"Mr. Nealand," he said, "I am very glad to see you. I know you by name and reputation, naturally. There were some excellent [illegible] in the latest [illegible] Ocean Magazine."

"I'll make a point of it, Captain West," said Nealand, shaking hands. "I see in them a gaiety. And such a [illegible] Bureau!"

"No. Oh, no! It ought to be, considering its elements. But it [illegible] romance in it, Captain West."

The captain's smile was pleasant but sceptical.

They seated themselves, Nealand declining an invitation to supper, and the captain asking his indulgence if he talked while eating.

"Mr. Nealand," he said, "I'm about to talk rather frankly with you. I have had several messages by wireless today from British [illegible]

Stocks Strong in New York in Active Market

OILS ADVANCE MORE THAN 5 POINTS

Coppers Move Upward, Rails Gain and Shipping Shares Are Higher

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks averaged higher in New York at noon, and quiet conditions were succeeded by losses ranging almost two to one. At the opening the market was firm and it rallied after a first sour reaction, which was due chiefly to realizing. Trading was very brisk, transactions for the first hour totalling around 150,000 shares. The volume of business was about as large in the last half of the forenoon. Oils were a leading group. Royal Dutch, Sinclair and Texas Co. advanced more than five points. There was enough demand for coppers before noon to send several up a point or more. Rails ruled higher, with Canadian Pacific in the van. Motors were irregular in the session, and did not develop strength. Willys-Overland barely regained its opening loss. Leathers showed more than a point gain at noon. Shipping issues sold higher after the opening. Steels ranged from 93 to 89¾, and other steels were narrow in price movement and comparatively quiet.

Stocks to sell during the morning at higher levels were Atlantic Gulf & Oil, Hide and Leather preferred, Corn Products and Atlantic Gulf. Among those to attain their highest for 1919 were American Beet Sugar, American Sugar, Texas Co., Marine common, Chesapeake & Ohio and Canadian Pacific.

LARGEST NOON SALES.

Largest gains at noon included Texas Co., 6 at 228½, Royal Dutch, sold 3 at 112, new, Mex. & Pet. 2d & Leather preferred, 1½ at 118¾, Atlantic Gulf, 4 at 118¾, Marine preferred, 2½ at 113¾, common, 1⅜ at 44½; Canadian Pacific, 2¾ at 170¾; Pan-American, 1 at 88½; Sinclair Oil, 1 at 62; Anaconda, 1⅜ at 64⅜. Inspiration, 1¼ at 51¼ and Utah Copper, 1⅝ at 78½.

Among declines were Willys Overland 1⅞ at 32⅝, Studebaker ⅞ at 76⅛, U. S. Rubber 1⅞ at 95½, Kelly Springfield 2⅜ at 123⅜ and American Can ¼ at 31½.

Bosch Magneto on the New York Exchange was 500 shares at 82 and of American Steel Foundries new stock, par value, 22 1-8, sold at 26.

BUYING ORDERS ACCUMULATED.

Buying orders accumulated over the holiday and when the market reopened losses advanced. A number of issues gained a point or more on first sales including American Woolen, American Smelting, Pacific, California Packing, General Motors, Reading, Sinclair Oil and Texas Co. The strength of standard rails was attributed to belief that Congress, from which body relief for carriers is due, will be in session within a few weeks. Reports from Wall Street generally indicate progressing smoothly sustained confidence as it is believed in financial circles that when the added load of much of the uncertainty which is hampering business will disappear. The demand for bank stocks continued large and reflects the prosperity prevailing here.

BUSINESS SITUATION GOOD.

Reports to the Federal Reserve Board from the twelve districts covering the country as to business conditions in April are encouraging. Retail trade is good and certain lines of manufacturing, notably textiles, there is increasing activity. But it is doubtful if metal interests will agree with the statement that the operating conditions have improved. In that branch of mining conditions are the most severe known in many years. Steel production, the chief of the country's industries, is decreasing, and the demand for basic commodities in general is confined to filling urgent necessities. Uncertainty as to what form the readjustment will take in the future is curtailing buying by manufacturers in many lines and is retarding industrial expansion more than any known drawback. Business, in fact, is waiting to learn when there will be reasonable certainty as to what material, labor and other conditions costs will be.

Trying to Hold Miners

It is reported from the Lake Superior district, where the Calumet & Hecla and its subsidiaries have further curtailed miners and laid off 2,000 men, that such independent producers as Quincy, Copper Range, Mohawk and Wolverine are going ahead full time in an effort to keep their miners at home from joining the exodus to Flint, Detroit and other centers of industry which just now are augmenting their working forces by importations from the Iron range copper and zinc districts. During the last week eight iron mines ceased down in northern Michigan.

U. S. Smelting Prospects

If the price of silver metal advances, the U. S. Smelting, Refining & Mining Company has a profitable prospect in its large holdings of the white metal. Its silver mines in Mexico are an important source of supply and a rise in the price of the commodity should make it more profitable.

High Record for Loans

The loan item in the statement of New York Clearing House banks for Saturday last amounted to the highest record figure of $5,020,623,000. The increase in loans during the week, according to the actual condition statement, was $117,419,000.

To Discuss Steel Prices

Bailey Administration officials and representatives of the independent New York tonnage are to discuss prices for rails and other steel products. Unless an agreement is reached an "open market" for the steel trade may result.

GOVERNMENT MAY DELAY MARKETING ITS SPELTER

It is reported that the Government is still considering plans to dispose of the 93,000,000 pounds of spelter left from its war stock. It has been proposed to sell on the same basis it is now selling its surplus copper, or at the rate of five per cent. a month for ten months and ten per cent. a month thereafter until the last is disposed of. This distribution it was claimed would not disturb the market for the metal. But it is doubted if the Government will try to dispose of any more spelter than it has to date. It would bring now would entail a large loss.

It is believed with the return of anything like normal conditions spelter will be the first to feel the impetus of buying and Government and producers will then be able to work out a selling program more advantageous to both.

WHAT NEW HAVEN ROAD MUST EARN IN FUTURE

After citing that it cost the United States a vast sum to operate and control over the New York, New Haven and Hartford in 1918, as the road earned $7,500,000 only towards the government guarantee of $37,000,000, a financial publication says:

"When New Haven is returned to private control, if it is to meet its obligations, pay a 6 per cent dividend, and have a sufficient surplus of earnings over dividend requirements to establish a proper credit, it should have $39,000,000 a year gross and with the none too certain $3,000,000 earnings from operation indicated for the current calendar year.

"Successful private operation must solve the problem of increasing earnings from $3,000,000 to $39,000,000, starting with a rate structure that is producing $140,000,000 gross and operating expenses of close to 100 per cent of that gross."

COTTON MARKET STEADY IN N. Y. AT OPENING

New York, May 7.—The cotton market was steady at the opening, although prices were irregular, with gains ranging 1 to 8 points here and late months 3 to 15 points higher. On the contrary near months were firm in Liverpool. Wet weather inspired buying of new crop months by Liverpool, Southern and Wall street and South. At the end of twenty minutes the market was 12 to 20 points net higher.

Opening prices were: May, 28.40; July, 26.75; September, 25.31; October, 24.72; November, 24.60; December, 24.83; January, 24.90; March, 25.00.

Boston's Most Active Market

The Boston stock market of yesterday was the most active for 1919 to date, transactions totalling 49,478 shares. Bond sales amounted to 164,000. The activity in the stock trading was not attributed to the closing of the New York Exchange to celebrate the parade of the 77th Division. It is recalled that when the New York market was closed on March 25, when the U. S. Division received its welcome, transactions on the open Boston Exchange totalled only 12,994 shares.

Corporation Reports

April sales of S. H. Kress & Co. were $2,041,380, an increase of $467,893 over the same month last year. For four months ended April 30 sales amounted to $8,725,484, an increase of $1,731,000 over the same period of 1918.

The consolidated statement of the Cuba Tupper Co. for the quarter ended December 31, 1918, shows surplus after charges of $300,938, equal to 8 cents a share (par value $25) earned on the $10,000,000 capital stock. This compares with surplus of $2,101,630, or 70 cents a share earned in the September, 1918 quarter.

U. S. SMELTING LEADS LOCAL MARKET

Prices Firm in Boston at Opening, but List Is Irregular at Noon

Firmness prevailed in Boston when the market opened, with U. S. Smelting an early feature. It continued to advance, opening a point higher at 54 and then gaining more than another to its highest price for the year. This mining company is one of the largest silver producers in the country, and it is expected that the price of the white metal will advance in a free market.

Cement issues started strong, but soon receded, which was true also of United Shoe. Swift International was active and also irregular in action. So the strongest of the food issues as a group they were inclined to recede. Coppers were irregular.

At the end of the first hour the list was marked by irregularity, and this was the marked characteristic as the art was weak all the morning, and American Bosch Magneto, which opened lower, recovered, and in the second hour showed a small gain. Utah Apex Brothers and Island Pond Creek recovered an early loss and advanced further. Walworth declined 1 point. Mashower sold at its year's highest.

The local market was active.

Gains at noon included Smelting 1 at 57, Swift International ⅛ at 65¾, United Fruit 1 at 137, Booth 1 at 81, Among declines were Walworth 1 at 22¾, Stewart ½ at 48, United Shoe ¼ at 45¾, Fairbanks 1 at 63¾ and Cuba Cane ⅛ at 17.

SLACK BUSINESS HARD BLOW TO RAILROADS

Washington, May 7.—Operation of the railroads for the first three months of 1919 produced a deficit of $192,000,000, according to an announcement from Director D. Hines, director-general of railroads.

The results for the calendar year 1918 show that on December 31, 1918 the deficit incurred by the railroad administration for the year amounted to $270,000,000.

Mr. Hines ascribes the bad showing of the first quarter of 1919 to the fact that business has fallen off and that expenses could not be correspondingly curtailed as the loss arises largely in connection with the period of readjustment through which the country is going.

"Industrial enterprises generally have suffered embarrassment on account of the fact that business has been curtailed so much more quickly than expenses could be curtailed," he says in a statement issued last night. "The railroad business is peculiar in its nature less elastic than any other business and shows more unfavorably the embarrassments of readjustment."

ANOTHER RATE RAISE?

Mr. Hines gives no special hints at a raise in rates. He says that "the present unfavorable results naturally lead to agitation of the question whether there should not be an increase in rates."

To this, however, he adds that in his judgment any increase should be no more abnormal to serve as a basis for any general change in rates.

Passenger business for the first three months of this year was only slightly less than for 1918, but the loss in freight business was much more pronounced.

"Under the circumstances," Mr. Hines declares, "on the basis of those three months to predict the results for the year as a whole would be unsafe. I believed the results will be less unfavorable if, as seems to be generally anticipated, there shall be an important resumption of business later in the year, especially as certain steps now in prospect shall be realized.

WEST IS OPTIMISTIC.

"On the trip in the west which I have just completed I found the most pronounced optimism on the part of business and agricultural interests generally, which gives a reasonable basis for hoping for an early resumption that will be relatively profitable to the railroads, although it should not correspondingly increase their costs.

"But while it is proper to mention those factors it must be admitted that in the midst of the present period of post-war adjustment it is impossible to make any confident statement as to the results of railroad operations for the remainder of this calendar year."

B. U. BUSINESS COLLEGE GROWTH 500 STUDENTS

That the College of Business Administration of Boston University is growing fast in popularity is shown in the enrolment figures in the new catalogue just issued. There are 867 students in the day division, an increase of almost 500 over last year. Deducting the 284 men in the S. A. T. C. and the eighty-five in the Naval Unit, there is still a total of 498 in the regular classes, 120 more than the previous year.

The evening division catalogue, now in press, shows almost 2,000 students registered.

The new total in both the day and evening divisions is 2,421, as compared with 1,873 last year.

Democratic Party Will Fail if It Ceases to Be Radical

Postmaster-General Burleson purposes to return the telegraphs to private control.

Director-General Hines purposes to return the railroads to the speculative financiers who have looted the properties and plundered the public.

There is no possible excuse or of explanation of this abandonment of the public ownership policies to which the Democratic party has been committed except the hope of securing corporation support in the next election.

But this is a false hope. Such reactionary action is not only bad public policy, but bad party politics.

The only hope for the success of the Democratic party is as a radical party.

The Republican party is a reactionary party. It is THE reactionary party.

If the people want to vote for reaction they will vote for the Republican party.

This is what they should do in wisdom and in common honesty.

The Republican party is conservative, and admittedly so. Therefore, when it pursues an ultra-conservative policy it is merely pursuing what it promised the voters to pursue, and is to that extent honest and dependable in its policies.

But the Democratic party goes before the country as a progressive party. It asks for the votes of those people who believe in progressive policies, and it promises to put such policies into execution.

Therefore, when the Democratic party becomes a reactionary party and abandons its progressive policies, it becomes a traitor to its principles and a base betrayer of the people who trusted it and who gave it their votes in misplaced confidence.

There is no reason why any independent citizen or any honest Democratic citizen should support such a dishonest, deceitful, trimming, trading, treacherous party. There is no reason why any man of principle should support a party without principle.

Principle is for the higher good of the whole community. Partisanship is merely for the selfish, sordid advantage of a factional few.

Devotion to principle is, therefore, a much better civic service than devotion to party and the vast patriotic majority of our citizens will put principle above party wherever a party through its treason to principle has brought upon itself deserved discredit.

With the immense preponderance of our people intelligently progressive in theory, judiciously radical in thought, and during this age of radicalism throughout the world there must be a soundly radical party in this country or there will be an unsoundly radical one.

There must be a party of temperate radicalism or there will be a party of violent radicalism.

There must be a party to express legitimately progressive desires and determinations of the majority of the people of the United States.

Samuel J. Tilden said: "The Democratic party will win whenever it has the courage to be democratic."

But if the Democratic party is too cowardly to be democratic, too timid and traitorous to carry out the progressive policies for which it declares and which the people demand, then it should be thrown out of office and a new properly progressive party formed.

"If the salt hath lost its savor, wherewith shall it be salted? It is thenceforth good for nothing but to cast out and trodden under the foot of men."

If the Democratic party has lost its savor, its service of the people, its progressive radicalism, it is thenceforth good for nothing but to be cast out, and should be kept out until it is ready to keep the Democratic faith, until "it has the courage to be democratic."

And the way to keep the Democratic party faithful to the principles of righteous radicalism is to elect true Democrats, genuine radicals, to office and not visionary, vacillating mugwumps and complaisant corporation lawyers.

Which Is First?

When Secretary Lane specified as the five pillars of our government "property, democracy, marriage, religon, business," we do not suppose that he ranked them in the order of their importance in his mind.

Indeed, to do so would be difficult for anyboiy.

To the true democrat democracy is a religbn and its defence the highest business.

But to the materialist property comes first, and the business of pursuing it is his real religion.

And to the sensualist marriage is a form of property which religion sanctions, though democracy thereby suffes.

So the manner in which you would rate these five pillars would help to reveal what you are.

With this in mind, you might try.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

A REFORMED PHILOSOPHER

We used to consider it smart to belong
To the calm, philosophical school.
We stoutly contended that nothing was wrong;
"Why worry?" was always our rule.
We hadn't the money to purchase a house,
So we rented a trim little flat.
"We'll be just as happy," we said to our spouse.
"And add to our savings at that."

When liquor went up to a dollar a drink
It garnered our goat for a while,
But after a long, philosophical think
We awaited July with a smile.
"Perhaps we've been taking a trifle too much,"
We murmured, stout-hearted and brave;
"Hereafter we'll tipple on sodas and such,
And think of the money we'll save!"

The violent jump in quotations on meat
We viewed with no inward disquiet.
We calmly determined we only should eat
An all-vegetarian diet.
"Why worry?" said we, "though but slender our means,
Meat eating is bad for the health.
They cannot charge much for potatoes and beans,
And soon we'll accumulate wealth."

But flats cost a lot more than houses today,
And sodas as much as straight rye.
Potatoes and beans have gone soaring away
To the uttermost heights of the sky.
We have lost all the fun that we ought to have had,
And haven't got money enough
To pay for a half dozen eggs—from a shad—
So we're off the philosophy stuff!

Ye TOWN GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By K. C. B.

Dear Mr. K. C. B.—You have been writing something about stenographers and I'm an office boy and I want to ask you if you was an office boy and you wanted to get ahead what would you do? Please tell me in your column.

JOHN THE OFFICE BOY.

MY DEAR John.
IN THE first place.
WHEN I wrote a letter.
I'D ALWAYS remember.
TO SAY "you were."
INSTEAD OF "you was."
WHICH ISN'T important.
EXCEPT FOR the reason.
THAT WE think it is.
AND AFTER that.
I'D WASH my face and hands.
AND SHINE my shoes.
AND BRUSH my clothes
AND HURRY to the office.
RIGHT ON time.
OR A minute before.
AND I'D try to be cheerful.
AND SAY: "Good morning."
TO MY fellow employes.
AND IF they didn't answer.
I'D KEEP on doing it.
UNTIL THEY did.
I'VE BEEN office boys.
REFORM A whole office.
AND WHATEVER it was.
THAT I had to do.
I'D go ahead and do it.
WITH THE same enthusiasm.
AS I might display.
IN A game of ball.
AND IF I had an idea.
I WAS a record breaker.
AS AN office boy.
I WOULDN'T tell the boss.
I'D JUST show him.
BECAUSE ONCE upon a time.
I HAD an office boy.
WHO KEPT telling me.
HOW GOOD he was.
AND I had to fire him.
AND IF I believed.
I WAS underpaid.
I WOULDN'T permit it.
TO MAKE any difference.
IN THE way I worked.
I'D EITHER quit.
OR DO the best I could.
AND IF I made a mistake.
I WOULDN'T hide it.
I'D TELL about it.
AND IF the stenographer.
WANTED A drink of water.
I WOULDN'T say.
"WHERE DO you get that stuff?
"I AIN'T no waiter."
I'D GET the water.
AND ONCE upon a time.
I WAS an office boy.
AND I never did anything.
AS I'VE told you to do it.
AND ALL the time.
I USED to get fired.
AND I made up my mind.
I'D NEVER make an office boy.
AND BY that time.
I WAS nearly grown up.
AND I became a reporter.
AND WAS forty-eight years old.
BEFORE I had an automobile.

I THANK you.

Glorious War History of the Fighting 26th Given for First Time from Official Records

That division which gave its nickname to the whole American army, and stood for the valor and high purpose of a nation—the Yankee Division—is the subject of a volume by Harry A. Benwell of Boston, just published (The Cornhill Company). This history was first published serially in the Boston American. It is the first chronological account of the division from inception to the return of victorious troops into Boston Harbor.

Forewords by Generals Pershing, Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, former leader of the division and now commander of the Northeastern Department, and Secretary Baker of the War Department, pay a high tribute to the morale and achievements of New England's men. In a preface the author acknowledges aid from many prominent army officers: General Edwards, Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole, Lieutenant-Colonel Andrew L. Pendleton, Brigadier-General George H. Shelton, Major John W. Hyatt and others, including Bert Ford, the well-known war correspondent.

The close touch with these officers which the author has maintained precludes the possibility of error in his work; it is carefully compiled, largely from official records, and many of the division's movements on the battlefields of France are chronicled in the concise terms of official reports.

Details Convenient

Thus the reader, already familiar with the glorious career of New England troops, finds the details of that career convenient to his hand. Many who have followed each day's news of our men overseas could not tell offhand the dates of organization and demobilization, of famous battles, citations, transfers of troops and leaders. These are all set down here with admirable clarity. Events which came piecemeal, day by day in the cabled news, take on a perspective in the volume which they lacked in the making. It is startling to learn that from the time it went to the front line until the end of hostilities the division as such had only ten days in a rest sector; that this respite came just before the crucial fighting at St. Mihiel. It is valuable to be able to find easily that the division was fully organized August 22, 1917; sailed in September; trained in France and first went into the line February 6, 1918, functioning from that date as a complete unit until the armistice.

These are only scattered facts; they merely suggest the valorous record of New England fighting men, and the keen interest with which the pages of Mr. Benwell's volume are alive.

Glowing Tributes

It is good to have at one's finger tips the tributes of such men as General Sabatier, General Passaga and General Degoutte to the Yankee boys. How many remember them?

General Sabatier: "They have deaffeated the 5th Landwehr Division. They own No Man's Land. I take off my hat to the 26th Division."

General Passaga: "With such men as these the cause of liberty is sure to triumph."

General Degoutte. "The magnificent results obtained are due to the energy and skilfulness of their commanders, and to the bravery of the soldiers. I am proud to have commanded such troops."

The accounts of much of the action, including the most famous battles, are told mainly in the words of those in closest touch with activities. For the story of Chateau Thierry the author calls upon the account published in "Stars and Stripes," the paper published inside the lines by the American Expeditionary Forces, and on the official report of the action by General Edwards.

An invaluable feature is the "individual service record" appended, to be filled out by the soldier owner of the volume. There are blanks for full personal data, dates of sailing, length of service furloughs, places visited, billeting, action at the front, casualties, citations and other items. Completely annotated, these pages will stand as a family record of incalculable worth.

Bonds at Par
Not So, Some Soldiers
Taft and Rosenwald
Chicago Cures Suicides

—By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1919.)

Everybody is dissatisfied with the peace treaty now, apparently, except Woodrow Wilson, England and Japan.

Marshal Foch, who really DID win the war, is the most recent complainer. He says the treaty does not give France sufficient military protection.

China is howling dismally. The Republican party in this country is mad, and Italy, with good cause, feels that she has been betrayed and her services to the victors ignored.

However, there is going to be a treaty. It will be signed soon. The bonds will be sold. The world will pick up its bundle and trudge on.

If you are still undecided about bonds and value the opinion of an able business man, you will be interested in what Julius Rosenwald said last night.

He, by the way, subscribed for a million of these bonds as he has for a million of every issue thus far. It makes little difference to him, apparently, whether they go up or down. If they go up he will give the money away, which is his habit, and if they go down, he won't miss the money.

He told his audience last night, as he has been telling his own employes and others who cannot afford to lose any money, that the bond now offered for sale cannot possibly be worth less than par at any time. The probability is that in a few weeks there will be a profit in every bond bought. He explained this matter thoroughly. His word is good and so is his business judgment.

It should not be necessary to prove that these bonds will not, temporarily, drop one dollar or two. They are a first mortgage on this government. They will be paid in five years in full with interest. And they are the best investment in the world.

You saw, perhaps, one of the parades of crippled soldiers, men walking, limping, or carried along because one or both legs were gone.

These men took a chance. They went over at par and came back below par, and they must STAY below par, physically, until they die.

William Howard Taft sets a good example to the rest of the country. Young in spirit but not in years, he would have an excuse for staying at home. He spends his nights travelling, and his days speaking for the Victory Loan, urging the people of the country to do their duty.

When he arrived at the railroad station yesterday he was greeted with cannon exploding in his ears, bands playing, people shrieking. He wondered later, in his speech, why it took so much noise and effort to jar the American people and make them pay attention, and especially why it took such a terrific jar to separate them from a small amount of their money.

Mr. Taft reminded the little people, and they ought to remember it, that the success of this loan interests them as well as the big men. If the money is not LENT, at four and three quarters per cent. interest, cheerfully, as it should be, it will be TAKEN by the Government, and taxed through income tax. And the increased income tax will not all go on the big fortunes. Much of it will go on the little incomes. The man who thinks he couldn't afford to buy a thousand dollars' worth of bonds may find his income tax increased by twice the interest on those bonds.

Mr. Taft said so, and he knows, for the Republicans will control this Congress and make the next tax bill. Better invest your money at four and three quarters per cent. and get it back dollar for dollar rather than hand it out in taxes.

The human heart and imagination are curious. Perhaps you'll find a better adjective.

A lady who called herself Louise Brown, went to a hotel in Chicago and, as she thought, committed suicide. She swallowed a great deal of bichloride of mercury. It seemed to agree with her. She didn't die. She left the hospital smiling a smile that the reporter said reminded him of the "Mona Lisa." Now Miss Brown calls herself "The Girl of Lost Illusions," and under that name writes the story.

She didn't want anybody to know that she intended to die, so she went to Chicago, where queer people are not noticed if they behave. She swallowed the poison, got over it, found that she was, for once in her life, in a really live city where dying was the most foolish thing you could do. Now she says she is going to stay in Chicago and be "A Booster." Chicago rejoices in that tribute, as in few others.

It has had many recommendations but was not yet known as the city that would change a would-be suicide into a booster.
